HARDING FILLS TWO PLACES

Names Hoover and Wallace for Cabinet Positions.

WALLACE WILL BE AGRICULTURE CHIEF

Unless Some Unlooked-for Contingency Arises.

The President-Elect Motors to Jacksonville Today—Guest at Luncheon and Will Attend Masonic Meeting Tonight.

St. Augustine, Florida, Feb. 25.—President-Elect Harding, today, closed up two more gaps in his cabinet by announcing the appointment of Herbert Hoover to be secretary of commerce and stating that "unless there should be some unlooked for coming-out," Henry Wallace, of Iowa, will be secretary of agriculture.

Today, the president-elect left St. Augustine shortly before noon to motor to Jacksonville, where he will spend the rest of the day and the evening. He will be the guest of Jacksonville business men, at a luncheon and in the evening, will attend the exemplification of thirty-second degree Masonry, motoring back to St. Augustine, tonight.

Before Departure.

Mr. Harding waited until just a few minutes before departing for a day's activities in Jacksonville to confirm the announcement made in New York, last night, concerning Mr. Hoover, after twelve hours' silence on the matter, after persistent efforts were made to get some confirmation of the appointment, the president-elect summoned the newspaper men to his office and said that the matter was closed with regard to the former food administrator.

"I talked with Mr. Hoover about 5 o'clock, last night, by long-distance telephone," said Mr. Harding. "The matter is closed."

"Mr. Hoover," Mr. Harding said, "has been doing precisely what every other prospective member of the cabinet has been doing—consulting with me regarding policies that are to be pursued. All of those whose appointments have been announced and those under consideration have outlined their policies and I have outlined mine.

"Mr. Hoover and I are in perfect accord regarding the policies that are to be pursued in his department.

"I talked with Mr. Hoover over the telephone, in order to save him a trip down here. We are in perfect accord.

To Do Things.

"I would not want Mr. Hoover in my cabinet if he were not going to do things in his department. In our talk, he wanted to know about the policies of the administration and was fully informed of them. He wanted to know the things that I would want done and I am glad to report that our ideas were in accord on things that needed to be done."

The announcement concerning Mr. Wallace was brought about by an article which Mr. Wallace recently contributed to a magazine, in which he practically announced his own appointment. When this article was called to Mr. Harding's attention, he said: "What do you want me to do, close up this cabinet today?"

"Yes," came the reply from the reporters.

"Well, all I can say with regard to this," said Mr. Harding, "is that unless some unforeseen contingency arises, I strongly suspect that Mr. Wallace will be the next secretary of agriculture."

The Hoover appointment was later confirmed by telephone. Mr. Harding said the president-elect did not consider it unusual for the announcement to come from Mr. Hoover. He said he had given Mr. Hoover a free hand in announcing anything he saw fit. The president-elect "sympathized" with the flock of newspaper correspondents here for getting "beaten" on the story.

Receives Message.

St. Augustine, Fla., Feb. 25.—President-Elect Harding received a message from Herbert Hoover in which the latter announced he would accept the offer of the cabinet post of secretary of commerce. Mr. Hoover also announced that he would continue to direct the policies of the relief.

President-Elect Harding emphasized he was proceeding warily in making commitments in regard to his cabinet appointments and kept himself free until the last to make any changes that unexpected developments may make necessary. He announced that several

DECISION IN THE ERIE CASE

Will Be Given by Rail Labor Board Next Monday.

BOARD MEMBERS GIVE HINTS ON FINDINGS

Strict Letter of Transportation Act Observed.

Stated That Road Should Be Required To Arrange Conference with Its Workers Before Coming to Board.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Decision by the United States railway labor board, in the case of the Erie railroad, which continued to enforce wage reductions against the board's order, will be handed down, Monday next, it was announced today. Board members intimated that the strict letter of the transportation act would be adhered to and the road required to arrange a conference between executives and employes before the board can assume jurisdiction.

The board, to date, has received no petitions from Attorney Frank P. Walsh, representing the unions, with regard to jurisdictional questions as has been reported in news despatches. The board intimated, however, it would take a decided stand on these questions before March 10, the date set for hearing the employes' argument in favor of retaining the national agreements.

Dissolution Ordered.

New York, Feb. 25.—The United States supreme court mandate ordering the dissolution of the combination effected by the Lehigh Valley Railroad company, the Lehigh Valley Coal company and the Delaware, Susquehanna & Schuylkill Railroad company was filed, today, in the federal court here. The mandate orders the dissolution of the combination, which was held to be in restraint of trade, within sixty days.

Offers a Prize.

Columbus, Feb. 25.—Governor Davis has announced that he will give $500 to the Ohio artist who sends the best painting to the state fair here next fall. The governor's offer is for the purpose of encouraging artists in the Buckeye state and to help elevate the standard of the state fair's art exhibit.

Liberty Bonds.

New York, Feb. 25.—Opening Liberty bonds: 3½s, $1.00; first 4¼s, $7.24; second 4¼s, $8.46; third 4¼s, $8.92; fourth 4¼s, $8.66; Victory 3¾s, 4¾s, $7.40.

GREEK PREMIER GIVES OPINION

Says Greece Will Not Accept Turk Proposal.

SETTLEMENT OF THE OTTOMAN PROBLEM

Found Difficult in Near-East Conference.

Reported Turks Are Willing To Accept Certain Proposals Made by the Allies, but the Greeks Show Hesitation.

London, Feb. 25.—Definite progress towards ending the warfare which has been raging in Turkey for months, was made by the Near-East conference, today. The Ottoman delegates pledged Turkey to abide by the allied commission's decision regarding the future status of Turkish territory, on condition that the Greek army in Anatolia is not moved nor is reinforced.

The other Turkish conditions were that Smyrna and Thrace be administered internationally during the inquiry of the allied commission, provided that it is concluded in two months.

Both the Turkish delegations and the Greek delegates were present at St. James palace. Premier Lloyd George, who was the moving figure of the conference, exerted all his persuasive powers to compromise the rivalries.

The Turks, after rejecting parts of the treaty of Sevres—the Turkish treaty—promised to accept the rest.

Bekir Sami, head of the delegation representing the Angora Nationalist government, consulted with his colleagues and then announced that the Turks were satisfied. While Premier Lloyd George was reading the Turkish conversations, Premier Kalogeropoulos, of Greece, sat listening to them. The Greek premier said he was hourly expecting cabled instructions from his government at Athens.

Will Not Accept.

London, Feb. 25.—Premier Kalogeropoulos, of Greece, head of the Greek delegation attending the Near-East conference, today declared that Greece will not accept the terms proposed by the Turks for a settlement of the Ottoman problem. A member of the Constantinople, or anti-Nationalist, delegation declared that his government is disposed to accept compromise plan of the allies "if it is sufficiently modified."

The Central News circulated a despatch this afternoon saying: "It is understood that the Turks have already given an affirmative reply to the proposals of the allies. The Greeks have notified the allied premiers that they are not yet ready to make a binding reply."

Turkish Claims Favored.

London, Feb. 25.—The Sevres treaty, signed at Versailles but not yet ratified by the powers, is to be redrafted in favor of the Turks, former enemies, against the wishes of the Greeks, former allies. To what extent, however, will not be known until the interallied commission has visited the spot and decided between the claims of the Greeks and the Turks regarding the ratio of population in Thrace and Smyrna. This decision was reached when the supreme council decided to invite the Greeks and Turks to separate conference.

Notes Sent Greece.

London, Feb. 25.—The proposed cancellation of war debts is not to be extended to Greece. An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Athens, today, said that Great Britain and France have sent notes to Greece demanding repayment of the war-time loans.

WILL NEVER APPEAR IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

Accused Baseball Players Under Ban, Says Johnson.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The baseball players now awaiting trial for alleged acceptance of bribes will never appear in the American league again, Ban Johnson, president of the league, said here today.

"If a jury happens to make a mistake—as they sometimes do—and absolves any of these players, I say here and now that such a player will never be permitted to wear a uniform in the American league," Johnson said.

Stock Market.

New York, Feb. 25.—The stock market continued to lower levels at the opening, today, initial prices being from fractions to over three points below last night's closing.

THE NEW PRESIDENT OF YALE COLLEGE

Dr. James Rowland Angell, director of the Carnegie foundation and formerly acting president of Chicago university, who was recently elected president of Yale, succeeding Dr. Arthur Hadley, who resigned a year ago. Dr. Angell is the first man not a member of the university faculty to be elected president of Yale.

HEADQUARTERS OF RUM RUNNERS

Detroit, Feb. 25.—Ecorse, a down-river village, reputed to be the largest rum runners' headquarters in the country, "cleaned up" by federal prohibition agents, Thursday night.

HOUSE LEADERS PESSIMISTIC

Can Not See Way to Passage of Appropriation Bills.

ARE DETERMINED TO ENFORCE ECONOMIES

Senate Army and Navy Bills May Be Rejected.

Fight Against Huge Increases in Appropriations Made by the Senate Will Be Fought Bitterly in Conference.

Washington, Feb. 25.—House leaders, today, were pessimistic for the first time, over chances of passage at the present session of congress of all the appropriation bills.

The senate committees have added $100,000,000 to the navy bill as it passed the house and about $42,000,000 to the army bill besides raising the permissible enlisted strength of the army from 150,000, as fixed by the house, to 175,000.

The house is determined to enforce its policy of economy. The navy and army bills, as they come from the senate, probably will be rejected by the house and the fight against the huge increases in appropriations made by the senate will be fought out in conference.

Drafting Reply.

Paris, Feb. 25.—The work of drafting a reply to the American mandate note was begun today. It is being put in shape by A. J. Balfour, of Great Britain, former British foreign secretary. The reply is expected to be sent to Washington next week. Leon Bourgeois, of France, at today's meeting of the league-of-nations council, presented a report on the disarmament resolution presented at the assembly meeting in Geneva.

WILSON RECEIVES A LETTER FROM HARDING

Will Observe Precedents in Inaugural If Possible.

Washington, Feb. 25.— President Wilson has received a letter from President-Elect Harding, stating that the president-elect's inaugural plans will be made to conform to Mr. Wilson's wishes, insofar as the president's participation in the inaugural is concerned, the White House announced today.

The president-elect stated in his letter that he did not desire to make any plans for the president's participation in the inaugural ceremonies, but would prefer to leave that matter to the wishes of the president, it was stated.

President Wilson is desirous of following all precedents and will participate as far as his physical condition permits, it was announced.

THREE BANDITS HOLD UP TRAIN

Make a Water-Haul on Chicago & Alton.

LITTLE REGISTERED MAIL IN THE LOOT

Train Raided Near East Quincy, Illinois, This Morning.

Engineer and Crew Taken on Engine a Mile from the Train. Bandits Leisurely Loot the Mail Car and Disappear.

Roodhouse, Illinois, Feb. 25.—The reported $150,000 mail robbery of Chicago & Alton train, No. 19, near here, early today, had become a mere $50 loss, shortly before noon, according to postal inspectors. Credit was given Messenger Myers, in charge of the baggage car, for hiding money orders for large amounts, when he heard the bandits order the door of the mail car opened.

Today's robbery of the "Hummer," as train, No. 19, is called, is the second within the past three weeks. On the former occasion, the bandits obtained nine dollars from members of the train crew before they were frightened away. It is believed the same men were implicated in both. Messenger Myers, who was in the first robbery, declared one of the bandits, today, resembled a participant in a former holdup.

Hold Up Train.

Roodhouse, Illinois, Feb. 25.—Three men armed with rifles, held up the Chicago & Alton train, known as the "Hummer," running from Kansas City to Chicago, shortly after midnight last night and escaped with about $50.

The robbery occurred near East Quincy, Illinois, but was not reported to officials until the train arrived here, early today. An attempt to rob the same train was made three weeks ago, but the bandits were driven off by the crew.

According to Engineer Donahue, the bandits halted the train near Louisiana, Missouri, by waving red flags. As he slowed down, the three men leaped aboard the tender of the locomotive and crawled into the cab, covered Donahey and the fireman with their rifles and forced them to detach the mail car and baggage coach from the train.

The bandits then forced the engineer to run ahead a mile or more, which brought them across the Mississippi river to Sni, Illinois. There two robbers guarded the crew while the third entered the mail car and robbed it. The bandits then deserted the train and disappeared in the darkness.

The "Hummer" left Kansas City at 5:25 p. m., yesterday and is due in Chicago at 7:45, this morning.

DENIES INTENTION TO SLASH PRICES

Judge Elbert H. Gary Talks of Steel Business.

New York, Feb. 25.—Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation, denied, today, that his corporation had called a meeting of salesmen, of other representatives, to discuss the advisability of slashing steel prices in order to bolster up business.

It was stated at the steel company's office here that the United States Steel corporation, which had not raised prices as high as independent during the war, had less difficulty in retaining its business than independents.

Judge Gary, today, attended a meeting of the American Iron & Steel institute, comprising the largest steel companies in America. This meeting may review the steel outlook informally.

GET THE PAYROLL AFTER PISTOL BATTLE

Cashier of Western Newspaper Union Robbed.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—After fighting a pistol battle with L. E. Plomgren, cashier, four automobile bandits, today, escaped with $10,000 in payroll money belonging to the Western Newspaper Union. Plomgren was felled by a blow from the butt of a pistol, but drew his gun and fired at the bandits until they vanished in their automobile. The robbers returned the fire, but Plomgren was not wounded. Plomgren and an assistant had just drawn the money from a bank, to be used in paying all the company's employes today.

FRENCH WORKMEN HOIST THE RED FLAG

Paris, Feb. 25.—Following a refusal to reinstate 100 discharged workmen, about 1,000 laborers, today, seized a factory at Argenteuil, which is partly owned by M. Loucheur, minister of liberated regions in the Briand cabinet. The workmen hoisted the red flag over the plant. The police are watching the situation carefully, but so far no clashes have been reported.

SELECTED FOR THE AGRICULTURAL HEAD

The selection of Henry Wallace, of Iowa, as head of the department of agriculture, was announced by President-Elect Warren G. Harding at St. Augustine this morning.

NATURAL GAS PROBE COMING

Ohio Senate Provides for a Full Investigation.

COMPANIES REAP UNFAIR PROFITS

Gas Wasted by Consumers, Charges Made in Situation. House and Senate Recess.

Columbus, Feb. 25.—The senate has confirmed Governor Davis' appointment of Police Judge Don S. Parker, Ashtabula, Republican, as Ohio's first state prohibition enforcement commissioner.

Measures designed to provide for enforcement of the uniform rule of taxation have been introduced in the house as follows:

By Miller, Coshocton, giving officials the right to confiscate fifty per cent. of all property withheld from taxation and fixing the status of intangible property so that money invested outside the state by Ohio residents shall be taxable in the county in which the owner resides; by Robinson, of Lawrence, providing a fifty-per-cent. penalty for failure to list personal property and giving county auditors inquisitorial powers; by Cope, of Columbiana, giving tax officials power to inquire into bank deposits.

A bill authorizing liability insurance companies to participate in workmen's compensation in Ohio, has been introduced by Representative Burns, Washington county. If enacted into law, the measure would restore the status which prevailed before the bill initiated by the Ohio Federation of Labor was passed, in 1917.

Senator Cornell, Wayne county, introduced a resolution proposing adoption of an amendment to the state constitution, permitting use of voting machines.

With only seven opposing votes, the senate adopted the Bender resolution providing for a legislative statewide probe of the natural-gas situation, including production and methods of distribution. The charge is made that much gas is wasted and that companies are making unreasonable profits. The attorney general to aid in the probe.

Although the senate has recessed until March 3, due to President-Elect Harding's inauguration, the house recesses until Tuesday, for a brief session to permit introduction of the governor's bill reorganizing state departments. Then it will recess until March 7.

DEVELOPMENT OF AIRCRAFT

Most Vital Single Consideration of Navy.

ALL-IMPORTANT IN HOSTILITIES

Declaration of Daniels, Who Is About To Retire.

Secretary of Navy Thinks the American People Will Soon Be Complete Masters of the Art of Dropping Bombs.

[BY HARRY L. ROGERS.]

[Copyright, 1921 I. N. S.]

Washington, Feb. 25.—The development of aircraft is the most vital single consideration with which the American navy has to deal, in the opinion of Josephus Daniels, who, March 5, will retire as secretary of the navy, after eight years of service.

Secretary Daniels made this statement, to an International News service correspondent, today, in an interview which covered the whole period of the secretary's incumbency and dealt with every important problem which has confronted him.

"If I were coming in as secretary of the navy, I would make the consistent note of my administration, sounding loud above everything else, the development of aviation," said the secretary. "If there is a future war and I hope there will not be, aircraft will play an all-important part from the very outbreak of hostilities—and while they haven't learned to drop bombs accurately as yet, they will learn to do so eventually.

"We have conquered practically all the natural forces except the air and the day is rapidly approaching when we shall have conquered that. When that day comes, I should like to see the navy leading, even as it led in flying across the Atlantic."

When Mr. Daniels goes out of office March 5, he will have served longer than any previous secretary of the navy. Gideon Welles, the only other secretary to serve two terms, lacked four days of equalling Daniels' record, having filled the office from March 7, 1861, until March 3, 1869.

Future of Navy.

"The future of the American navy depends upon the attitude of the Harding administration," said Secretary Daniels. "George Washington had no secretary of the navy and the time may come again when the navy will have no separate representative in the cabinet.

"It has been proposed—by General Dawes, I believe—that the war and navy departments be consolidated. If the United States enters an association of nations, permitting a reduction in armaments, such a consolidation probably would be possible.

"If we do not go into such an association, running the navy will be the biggest job in the cabinet."

Daniels believes the post will be the biggest job in the cabinet, because he is convinced that the United States must have the most powerful navy in the world, if she is to play a "lone hand" in the affairs of the world.

"Have no patience," he said, "with this talk of being second naval power in the world. The American navy must be second to none; it must be first; and I believe a majority of the people of America will not be content until it is."

"What about communications, Mr. Secretary," he was asked.

"You know I was in Paris during the peace conference," he said. "I lived there three years in three weeks. I learned very thoroughly a good many things which I had known only vaguely before. I learned that oil and communications are the two things that all great powers are most interested in, because they are the two prime essentials for the efficient operation of a fleet.

"Oil is the very life of sea fighting. No coal burner can fight an oil burner on anything like equal terms. And a fleet without communications is a fleet without eyes.

Isle of Yap.

"I have sweat blood over the Isle of Yap since the peace conference. However, those are matters for the state department to consider."

Though Secretary Daniels believes the navy should be kept at a strength equal to that of the strongest nation, he does not advocate such sustained preparation in the army. The war, he says, has proved that a competent body of trained officers can convert the young men of America into an efficient fighting force in a comparatively short period.

GERMAN COUNTESS SUES UNITED STATES

Countess Jeanne von Bernstorff, wife of the former German ambassador to Washington, in whose behalf a suit to recover approximately $1,000,000 worth of property, seized during the war by the enemy alien custodian, was filed in the Washington supreme court. The countess alleges that none of the property involved came to her from German, Austrian or other enemy sources, it having been inherited from her father, the late Edward Lackemeyer, of New York.

COLBY'S NOTE MADE PUBLIC

America's Portion Made Plain to League Council.

A FIRM ATTITUDE SHOWN IN MATTER

Disposition of Former German Possessions Must Have Assent of United States.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The American government has taken an unequivocal stand with regard to its right to a voice in the disposition of the former overseas possessions of Germany.

Secretary Colby, in his note to the council of the league of nations, made public at the state department, submits that the disposition of these possessions "can not be undertaken or effectuated" without the assent of the United States.

Furthermore, the secretary states that the United States as one of the "principal and allied and associated powers" has "an equal concern and an inseparable interest" with the others of those powers in the territories taken from Germany and "concededly" an equal voice in their disposition.

Declaring that the American government can not regard itself as bound by the terms and provisions of the mandate given to Japan over the Pacific island of Yap at the meeting of the league of nations at Geneva last December 17, the secretary of state requests that the council, "having obviously acted under a misapprehension of the facts" in assuming that the United States had approved a Japanese mandate over the island, reopen the question for "the further consideration which the proper settlement of it clearly requires."

Discussing the note, state department officials declared that in acting at this time the present administration had strengthened the position of the new administration, which comes into office March 4, rather than adding an embarrassment. The opinion also was expressed that there might be a conference of the interested powers to discuss the whole question. It is understood that such a course would be acceptable to the United States.

Note Discussed.

Referring to the Yap mandate, Secretary Colby says in his note to discussions of the question at Paris, "President Wilson was particular to stipulate that it should be reserved for future consideration," and that subsequently the United States in notes to Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, "set forth at length its contention that Yap had in fact been accepted" from the proposed mandate to Japan for the Pacific islands north of the equator held by Germany.

CROWN FORCES ARE DEFEATED

In Battle Lasting Two Hours, Near Ballyvourney.

IRISH REPUBLICAN ARMY ATTACKS

Ambuscades British Force—The British, Outnumbered, Are Driven from Field.

Dublin, Feb. 25.—A battle was fought, today, near Ballyvourney, when the crown forces were defeated by a heavy section of the Irish republican army.

It is known that four members of the crown forces were killed and upwards of six wounded, but the total casualties have not been checked up.

One of the dead was Major Grant, commanding the Black and Tan police.

There were more than 300 Sinn Feiners in the battle against the military police.

Eight police lorries filled with Black and Tans were passing through the Coolea district, west of Macroom, when they ran into roads that had been mined.

An attack was opened upon the lorries with the Sinn Feiners firing from behind barricades.

From a skirmish, the engagement grew into a furious battle with the crash of gunfire audible for miles. Reinforcements of heavily armed policemen were rushed to the scene from the Cork barracks and joined in the fray.

Reinforcements Sent.

Belief was expressed that the dead may go to ten. The Sinn Fein casualties were said to have been heavy. In the Macroom district, British troops and military policemen have trained forty-five machine-guns upon the roads to prevent ambuscades.

Hundreds of English soldiers were rushed to the Ballyvourney district. A military aeroplane hovered over the scene, throughout the afternoon, scouting for bands of armed men.

The roads in the Ballyvourney district are flanked by wooded hills, affording excellent shelter for attackers.

It was understood that there were about seventy Black and Tan policemen in the lorries that were attacked.

According to information received here, this afternoon, the crown forces, being outnumbered, were compelled to retreat after an action of two hours, leaving part of their wounded behind them on the field of battle.

SNOW, CATERPILLARS, JONQUILS AND TULIPS

February Turns Out an Unusual Assortment.

"Johnny, get your gun, your sword and your pistol."

Remember, doncha?

Sure! It was back in "them happy days of youth."

And at what time of year did that line of action—"get your gun, your sword and your pistol"—appeal to you most? In the springtime? Why, of course. So, the old familiar boyhood line must be calling to you now, for aren't the jonquils and the tulips and other members of the Narcissus family puking up their heads? That's no dream stuff, either. It's a fact, honest Injun. 'N the caterpillars are about, too.

Now isn't all of this a complete verification of the claims of the Star's weather observing reporter—claims he faithfully has been setting forth about February? The fair-minded man or woman or child—the fellow who wants to see justice done to a much-maligned month—answers promptly: "You bet!"

Suppose it did spit snow again today, wasn't it a very mild February day? No, that's wrong—wasn't it an ideal March day?

Horray! Again, now all together, horray! February still turns up a snubby nose to Winter.

"There's a [illegible]loned chair for you, father," said Jack, opening the side door the six inches permitted by the protection chain. "Just view the scenery and make yourself comfortable."

"You must be a great favorite, Jack, to get a job in the very first car of the train. What's that iron box in the corner?" asked the old man.

"That's the express company's safe," explained Jack. "We're carrying the pay roll of two sections tonight. I presume there's a quarter of a million dollars in that safe."

"And something else, Jack!" laughed his mate, Dave Hardy. "Your son has locked up his first engagement ring for safe keeping, Mr. Danby."

"Eh, who's it for?" inquired the old farmer, pricking up his ears.

"Why, who could it be for but pretty Nance Brodrick?" asked Jack, flushing furiously. "I hope you don't find any objection, father?"

"Yes, I do," declared the farmer. "I object to your not having married her long ago. I would, if I'd been in your shoes. Ha, ha!"

The old man sat at the breezy opening in the door, watching the fast flying landscape with manifest contentment and delight.

"What you got in that box, father?" asked Jack finally.

"Nothing to attract you, son. You've been so long away from the farm it wouldn't interest you."

"See here, father," said Jack "in the head end of the car, yonder, there's a cot. Dave and I spell each other on it on the long runs sometimes. Rest a bit, won't you?"

"I believe I will," assented the farmer.

Jack soon heard his father snoring. He and his mate were sorting some second-class express matter about an hour later when a crash aroused them.

In went the panel of the platform door. The end of a crowbar intruded. Then, before the startled express messengers could advance or retreat, a quick hand reached in, snapped the catch, and as the shattered door swung inwards two men sprang into view.

"Hands up!" ordered one of them, and the trainmen found themselves threatened with two glittering revolvers.

His companion must have been working some fifteen minutes on the stubborn strong box, when the old farmer awoke.

"Father," spoke Jack quickly, "don't stir, don't raise your voice above a whisper."

"Why not?" inquired the old man.

"Train robbers!" announced Dave in a cautious voice.

"You don't say so—where?" demanded the farmer.

"Out in the other part of the car. The old man ventured cautiously to the door window and peered through. Then he retreated into the darkness. Jack heard him chuckle and approach the door again, his mysterious box in his hand.

"Hi! what's that?" sharply yelled the man at the safe, dropping his burglarious tools in a hurry.

"I should say so! Bees!" yelled his partner. "Ouch! Murder! There's a dozen of them! A thousand! A swarm!"

STATE WINS IN BATTLE TODAY

Alber Felts Does Not Answer Questions of Defense.

STATE BREAKS DOWN ELABORATE DEFENSE

Defense Seeks Admission That Coal Operators Are Financing Prosecution.

Mingo County Courthouse, Williamson, W. Va., Feb 25.—A solid battery of objections from the state, sustained by Judge Robert D. Ballard, combatted a furious cross-fire of questions hurled, today, at Tom Felts, on the witness stand in the "trigger" trial, by J. J. Conniff, for the defense.

The state's counter-barrage was successful. It silenced Conniff's fusillade.

Thus broke down an elaborate attempt to draw from the head of the Baldwin-Felts detective agency answers to these questions:

1—Is the Coal Operators' association contributing to the prosecution of Sid. Hatfield and his eighteen co-defendants in the trial for the murder of Albert Felts, brother of Tom?

2—Were the evictions of union miners' families by the Felts detectives, which led to the battle of Matewan, a part of a fixed campaign to wreck the Mingo branch of the United Mine Workers of America and defeat the mine strike?

With building tenacity, Conniff pursued his questions on these subjects, defying and trying to circumvent the steady counter-fire of the five attorneys specially engaged to prosecute the case.

Finally, he was forced to give up Felts was excused, but Conniff announced he would recall him.

Hoskins Testifies.

Al Hoskins, an eyewitness to the battle, gave incriminating testimony against several of the defendants, notably Sid Hatfield and Reece Chambers.

He denied having sworn before the grand jury: "I saw Isaac Brewer stick his gun in Felts' face and shoot him."

At the afternoon session, J. C. Jack testified Sid Hatfield told him, shortly before the battle, that warrants for the arrest of the Felts detectives were on the way. He quoted Hatfield as adding:

"If we get the crowd together, we will kill every d— one of them without any d—warrants."

He said Reece Chambers, who had a rifle, said, pointing to the weapon: "This will get them."

MRS. MAC SWINEY TO MARRY O'BRIEN

Will Wed Man Who Works Hard for Mac Swiney's Release.

London, Feb. 25.—The Evening Star, yesterday, announced that Mrs. Terence MacSwiney, widow of Lord Mayor MacSwiney, of Cork, is engaged to Art O'Brien, vice president of the Irish Self-Determination league and president of the London branch of that roganization.

Lord Mayor MacSwiney died in Brixton Prison, London, October 25, after a hunger strike of seventy-three days. During MacSwiney's incarceration Mr. O'Brien furnished the newspapers with almost hourly bulletins of the condition of the Lord Mayor and worked tremuously for the Lord Mayor's release.

In this work, says the Evening Star, he necessarily was thrown frequently into the society of Mrs. MacSwiney.

INTERNATIONAL COMMUNICATIONS

Subject of a Conference Held This Afternoon.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The international communications conference met, this afternoon, for a brief session, but failed to take any action on the disposition of the German cables seized during the war, or the insistence of the United States that equal opportunity shall be afforded all nations in cable facilities on the Isle of Yap.

"A satisfactory discussion" was the description under Secretary of State Davis gave of today's session. There will be several group conferences in the next few days. No date has been set for the next full meeting.

Grain for China.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The senate, today, passed the bill providing for an appropriation of $500,000 to pay for the transportation of grain to China, for relief of the starving areas of that country.

Market Irregular.

New York, Feb. 25.—The stock market closed irregular, today. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds irregular.

Traffic Crippled.

Mexico City, Feb. 25. — Railroad traffic is seriously crippled, today, as a result of the general strike.

A Mistake in Rolls

By MURIEL BLAIR

(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

"This is a great moment in your life, my son," said the mother of Adolphus Barclay. "I hope and believe that it settles your future."

"And I am sure that it will," declared Algernon Barclay's sister. "Don't you think so, Irma?"

"He certainly deserves the best the world can give him," answered Adolphus Barclay's fiancee, blushingly sweet as her eyes answered the deep love light in his own.

"Well, we will soon know," proclaimed Adolphus himself. "Where is my manuscript? Ah, here. Good-by," and kissing all three of the best friends a young man ever had, the hope of the Barclay family made a rush for the railroad depot.

A year out of college, critic and authority on ancient literature, Adolphus was striving hard to win the tutelary plum of Harris college. It was a two thousand dollars per year position, with perquisites. In case he won it, there would be a wedding, a family reproval, and he would feel settled for life.

So far everything looked favorable. Adolphus had appeared before the august college faculty and had read his paper on Egyptian poetry. He had made a hit. It seemed as if his position was assured. A few days later, however, the president of Harris wrote him to come down with something bright and interesting, and give the students a sample of his erudition.

"I understand a good many wealthy men send their sons to Harris," Adolphus explained to his mother. "I suppose the college heads wish to cater to them. If I make a favorable impression on the students, I fancy, I will be acceptable all around."

The result was the manuscript in the black leather roll which Adolphus now carried. It dealt with ancient romance, precisely the thing to suit a lot of young fellows, he decided.

Adolphus caught the train just in time, threw his roll up in the car rack, and sank into his seat to move along to make room for a second hurry-up. This traveler also carried a manuscript roll, the exact counterpart of that belonging to Adolphus. He likewise tossed this into the rack, and smiled broadly as he said:

"Music?"

"Oh, no," replied Adolphus—"lecture."

"H'm; so? Further coincidence. Same line. Shake."

"I am a professional humorist," he told Adolphus. "Bound for a Dunkard settlement at Jackson."

They became so companionable that the train was starting up from a stop before the humorist was aware that it was his station.

"See you again," he said, grabbing for his manuscript roll and rushing for the depot platform.

In due time Adolphus arrived at the college town.

Adolphus ascended to the rostrum and opened his manuscript roll. His audience was suspiciously quiet.

"I am at your service this evening, gentlemen," he began, "with a brief talk on the—"

There Adolphus gasped. His eyes stared at the neatly typewritten pages before him. He was electrified. The room swam. He paled, he trembled. The manuscript before him was not his own! In his hurry in leaving the train the humorist had grabbed up the wrong manuscript roll.

It was the crucial, critical moment in the life of Adolphus. In desperation he called out huskily:

"The subject of my lecture is 'The Jokes of the Ancients.'"

"Good!" "New!" "Give us a sample!" and like eager and urgent calls filled the air.

Adolphus began to read. He had not proceeded ten lines before he realized that the humorist was an adept in his line.

The jokes were funny, but there was an added zest to the appreciativeness of the audience. This was the solemn, owl-like seriousness of the lecturer. To Adolphus it was no fun.

With wild whoops the crowd made a rush for Adolphus as he folded up his manuscript. Four stalwart fellows raised him on their shoulders. Amid gay hurrahs they started from the room with him.

"Gentleman! gentleman!" reprimanded a stentorian voice as they reached the doorway, and the president of the college halted the crowd.

"It's all right, Prex," declared the ringleader of the riot. "We've elected him our new professor, and we're going to give him the honorary degree in all our fraternal societies by carrying him three times around the campus to the tune of—"

A favorite all around, the young man was settled for life, and a happy bridegroom to the bargain, a few weeks later.

That was not all of it. The humorist hunted up Adolphus to get back his manuscript. The one he had taken by mistake he claimed had saved the day for him. His sentiment and classical tinge had just caught his audience. It gave him a great reputation for versatility, and the lecture bureau had raised his pay. He hired Adolphus on the spot to write him a series of lectures in the same vein, and this work resulted in some substantial pin money for his delighted little wife.

LIBERTY BONDS ARE STOLEN IN CHICAGO

Northern Trust Company Loses $772,000 Yesterday.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Liberty bonds totalling more than $770,000 were stolen yesterday from the Northern Trust company here, according to an announcement made today by the company.

The bonds, according to the announcement, are believed to have been taken from the building during the noon hour by William Dalton, an employe of three years standing in the securities cage of the trust department.

A reward of $1,000 has been offered for the arrest of Dalton and a $25,000 reward will be paid for the return of the bonds.

The bonds are described by the announcement as being of the fourth issue and their total par value $772,000. The institution is partially covered on their loss by insurance.

THE RAILROADS

A claim prevention meeting of the staff officials of the Cincinnati division of the Erie is being held this afternoon in the office of Superintendent F. E. House.

Today was pay day for the local employes of the Pennsylvania for the first half of February.

L. G. Torbeck, of Cincinnati, traveling freight agent of the St. L. S. W. railroad, was looking after business in local railroad circles, Thursday.

J. S. Beale, traveling freight solicitor of the Pennsylvania, is in the city on business, today.

Notices calling attention to the Frank Thomson and the John Clark Sims memorial scholarships, available to the children of Pennsylvania railroad employes, are being posted today, on the bulletin boards over the entire system. There are two Frank Thomson scholarships available this year, amounting to a yearly sum of $600 each. They were created in 1907 by the children of the late Frank Thomson, formerly president of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, in memory of their father. These scholarships were designed to give the sons of living and deceased employes an opportunity to secure a technical education, thereby better qualifying them for employment by the Pennsylvania railroad system.

SCHOOLS AND BUSINESS HOUSES TO BE CLOSED

While Farewell Reception Is Held for Hardings.

FRONT-PORCH EVENT SCHEDULED FOR 11 A. M.

No Parade or Band—Reception Will Be Similar to Home-coming, July 5.

[illegible]ton schools and business houses are to close next Wednesday morning to permit school children and employes to attend the farewell reception at the Mt. Vernon avenue home of President-Elect and Mrs. W. G. Harding.

The [illegible] and St. Mary's schools will close at 10:30 o'clock for the remainder of the morning and will reopen in the afternoon.

Business men have decided to close their places of business from 10 o'clock Wednesday morning until noon.

The program at the Harding home will begin at 11 o'clock with the presentation of a solid silver plaque to President-Elect and Mrs. Harding by Dr. F. H. McAfee, pastor of Trinity Baptist church, for the citizens of Marion. Mr. Harding is expected to make a response and then he and Mrs. Harding will receive the visitors.

There is to be no parade or band and the reception will follow the plan carried out at the welcome-home celebration at the front porch July 5.

BRIEF SESSION OF THE OHIO SENATE

A Special Bill for War Veterans Is Introduced.

Columbus, Feb. 25.—At a brief session of the senate, today, Senator Jones, Meigs county, introduced a bill exempting persons who served in the recent World war from paying tuition fees while attending state-supported schools.

The senate indefinately postponed action on a bill by Senator Deweese, Miami county, to make building-and-loan associations depositories for school funds.

OFFICE BOY BECOMES GREAT COAL OWNER

Lord Joicey, Britain's "Coal King," who has often been described as the world's largest and wealthiest coal owner. Lord Joicey started life as an office boy and today he rejoices in the nickname of "Old King Coal." His father was a Newcastle engineer, and he himself won his way to a peerage and a place on the lists of England's millionaries by sheer hard work and two miner's picks are enshrined on his coat-of-arms.

DISARMAMENT IS DISCUSSED TODAY

League of Nations Council Takes Up Matter.

Paris, Feb. 25.—Disarmament was discussed by the delegates to the league-of-nations council meeting, today, without any progress.

The report of Leon Bourgeois, of France, was adopted. This report repeats many of the objections against disarmament that were raised at the assembly meeting at Geneva, notably the absence of the United States from the league.

The report recommends establishment of a mixed commission of military and naval experts, political, financial and industrial representatives.

THE POSTOFFICE APPROPRIATION BILL

Measure Carries $550,000,000 for Postal Operations.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The post-office appropriation bill conference report was finally agreed to by the senate today. The bill carried $550,000,000 for the operation of the post-office department for one year beginning July 1. The bill was sent to the president.

VICTORS MAY PROVE LOSERS

Unless German Indemnity Is Definitely Settled.

FRENCH PREMIER TALKS OF SITUATION

Says Unrest in World Will Continue Until Indemnity Problem Is Settled.

London, Feb. 25.—Unless German indemnity is definitely settled, the victors in the war are menaced with the threat of becoming the losers, Premier Briand, of France, told the International News service, this afternoon.

Premier Briand's interview contained a threat for Germany. If said Germany would have to open her purse. If Germany refuses, the allies will open it with force, he said.

Germany will be allowed to present counter-proposals when the international indemnity conference opens here, March 4, but will not be allowed to reopen the question of amount.

"Until the indemnity problem is settled, the unrest throughout the world will continue," said Premier Briand. "Unless it is settled, the losers will become the victors and the victors in the war will become the victims.

"We will listen to any counter-proposals the Germans may care to make at the forthcoming indemnity conference. We will listen to these proposals without bias and with an open mind. But if Germany refuses to open her purse—well, we will open it for her.

"The conferences are uniting the allies. I can assure the world that the troublesome problems in the Near East will be satisfactorily adjusted, as a result of the meeting now being held here."

NEW COUNTY TREASURER IS MADE A DEFENDANT

In Injunction Suit of J. D. Harrison and Others.

FRANK OLIN ACQUITTED ON THURSDAY EVENING

Takes Jury but Short Time To Reach a Verdict—Mayor's Case Taken Up.

On his own motion Harry Smith, county treasurer, this morning was substituted for Harry C Forry, former treasurer, as a defendant in the suit of John D Harrison and others against Harry C Forry, county treasurer, and the city of Marion. The action is a suit for injunction to restrain the collection of assessments for the west Center street paving and the Plymouth street sewerage.

The answer of the county treasurer and the city was filed this morning in the suit, setting up a general denial of the charge in the petition The instruments were filed through George J Geran city solicitor.

Frank Olin Acquitted.

A verdict acquitting the defendant was returned by a jury in the common pleas court late Thursday evening in the case of the state against Frank Olin, aged sixty-six years, indicted on statutory charges by the January grand jury.

The case went to the jury at 5 25 o'clock Thursday afternoon and after a few minutes' consideration the jury was taken to supper. After about thirty minutes' deliberation the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. W. C. Wooley was foreman of the jury.

It was expected that the case would not reach the jury until this morning, but before the arguments were presented counsel and the jurors expressed a desire to continue and finish the case. Prosecuting Attorney Fred W. Warner represented the state and L. E Myers was attorney for the defendant.

Amended Petition.

The amended petition of the plaintiff was filed in the common pleas court this morning, through Frank Pigman, of Galion, and William P Moloney, in the case of Oscar Wissler against Ellery J Ireland.

The suit is the outgrowth of an alleged breach of contract for the farming of 124 acres in Tully township in 1918 The plaintiff alleges the defendant broke the contract and ordered him not to come on the place. He is suing for $2,416 86 and alleges the defendant refused to make a settlement.

An Amendment.

An amendment to the petition of the plaintiff was filed in the common pleas court this morning through Hoke W. Donithen in the partition suit of George F. Lusch against John F. Stengel and others.

The plaintiff claims John F. Stengel has used one of the parcels of land described and has not paid any rent for it. He asks that the defendant John F. Stengel, be required to make an accounting for the rents and profits from the land he is said to have used

Answer Is Filed.

Royal Martin today was appointed guardian ad litem for Catherine Hecker, a minor defendant in the partition suit of Bertha S Gracely against Albert W Gracely and others, and given leave to file an answer at once Partition of the premises was ordered by the court and S R Rauhauser, G Farr Lorie and R. T Lewis appointed commissioners

Through J H Eymon, Royal Martin filed an answer denying such allegations as might be prejudicial to his ward and asked that the court protect her interests Robert Hecker, through J H Eymon, also filed an answer this morning admitting the facts stated in the petition and consenting to partition of the premises A similar answer was filed Thursday afternoon by Albert W. Gracely and thirteen other defendants

Petition-in-Error

Through Criesinger, Guthery & Strellitz, a petition-in-error was filed in the common pleas court Thursday afternoon by Harvey C Claypool, plaintiff-in error, against the state of Ohio, defendant-in error The plaintiff-in-error was fined $25 in Mayor T. E Andrews' court February 5 on being found guilty of a charge of assault preferred against him by William Burdett

Cleans by Air-Alone!

Nine Facts About the Royal

The latest and best invention in electric suction cleaners.

1. Royal Bag - - Dust-tight, of special close weave fabric, easily emptied.
2. Handle—1 piece steel, tubular, nickeled
3. Handle Stop—Will hold handle in any position
4. Fan - Perfectly balanced with motor armature, eliminating vibration and wear.
5. Royal Motor—High speed, designed for greatest efficiency with lowest current consumption, drives fan about 9500 revolutions per minute; mounted horizontally, thus equally distributing weight on two high-grade phosphor bronze bearings.
6. Cord Connection—Protected by steel cap, easily disconnected when necessary.
7. Large Rubberoid Wheels—Do not scratch or mar floors; pass easily over thresholds, etc
8. Nozzle—14 inches wide—cleans greater surface in less time; cleans in and under places most cleaners cannot reach; instantly detachable.
9. Adjusting Screw—Instantly raises or lowers nozzle to correct height—for most effective cleaning.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Will Speak Sunday.

Evangelist Joseph Shellhaas will speak on the subject, "Will Japan Fight America?" Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Seventh-Day Adventist church. Some important prophecies will be considered by the evangelist in this lecture.

Toledo Man To Speak.

John G. Smith, of Toledo, will lecture and give messages Sunday afternoon at 2:30 and Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the First Spiritualist church, No. 131 1-2 north Main street.

Epworth Circle No. 2.

Mrs. Carl Danner was hostess to the members of Circle No. 2 of the Epworth M. E. church, Thursday afternoon, at her home on Girard avenue. The afternoon was passed socially and Miss Ruth Louise Henderson and Miss Kathleen Bricker contributed a pleasing piano number. Arrangements were made to hold a special prayer service the week preceding the revival services in the church

Tabitha Class.

Mrs. Henry Ackerman was hostess to the members of the Tabitha class, of the Salem Evangelical Sunday-school, and a number of visitors, Thursday afternoon, at her home on south Main street. A large number of articles was collected for the needy children of Europe and will be sent today. A social hour was enjoyed.

Reformed Aid Society.

The members of the Ladies' Aid society, of the First Reformed church, met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Fritch, of Park boulevard. Plans were made for the society to do plain sewing and quilting. During the social hour Mrs. John Jones gave a reading, "Our Church," and Mrs. George Fritch contributed a reading "In Our Own Day in Our Own Way." Miss Cornelia Scherry also contributed a pleasing vocal solo.

At the Newin Revival.

The revival at the First Presbyterian church, conducted by Dr. O. A. Newlin, has but ten more days before the closing benediction will be pronounced. The sermon last evening was preceded by an unusually interesting song service. The auditorium was darkened and the only light was that which was shed by a large illuminated cross suspended over the altar. The familiar songs of Calvary and the Cross were sung. G. E. Bonney closed this impressive song service by singing as a solo, "The Old Rugged Cross."

Dr. Newlin's theme was "The Philosophy of Feeling," which proved to be a timely warning to the gospel hardened. In his characteristic way he described the generation of "feelingites" who are always talking about how they feel or how they want to feel. He brought before the people the fact that salvation comes through faith and not feeling.

At the close of the service a heart-to-heart conference was held in which a large portion of the congregation remained and the problems confronting the revival were discussed

At Wesley Church.

Friday, March 4, at 7:15 p. m., Dr. William McK Brackney, of Delaware, will hold the second quarterly conference at the Wesley M. E. church, and at 7:45 p. m. Dr. Ralph A. Ward, of Philadelphia, for some time in China, will give an illustrated lecture on work in China The services are free.

Epworth Circle No. 9.

Mrs. James Lockard was hostess to the members of Circle No. 9, of the Epworth M. E. Aid society, Thursday afternoon, at her home on east Church street. The time was passed in sewing for the City hospital. Miss Frances McGuire was a guest of the circle. A special prayer service will be held Tuesday March 8, at the home of Mrs. Joseph Justice, of east Center street.

Westminster Guild Chapter.

Mrs. Ray R. King was hostess to the members of the Marion Chapter, of the Westminster guild, Thursday afternoon, at her home on Lafayette street. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. James Williams, Mrs. L. C. Strang, Mrs. Frank Foster and Mrs. Frank Creviston. Papers were read by Mrs. Frank Foster and Mrs. Eugene Thomas. The afternoon was passed socially and a tea was served. Mrs. John Garberon, Mrs Hestor Young, Misses Lucretia and Susan Garberson were guests.

Epworth Circle No. 12.

Mrs. Charles Curtis was hostess to the members of Circle No. 12, of the Epworth M. E. Aid society, Thursday afternoon at her home on McWilliams court. There was a large attendance and the afternoon was passed in sewing carpet-rags and comforters. Arrangements were made for a prayer-meeting to be held March 8 at the home of Mrs. John H. Bain, of east Center street, preparatory to the revival services at the church.

At Calvary Church.

Last night's service at Calvary church attracted a large crowd of people. The large auditorium was comfortably filled with folks who enjoyed one of the best services thus far held. The singing under the direction of Mr. George D. Reep was inspiring. The pastor preached on the theme, "God's Picture of an Unhappy Family," and fourteen persons came to the altar and were converted. The theme for tonight will be "The Happy and the Unhappy Man." Mr. Reep will sing.

Sunday afternoon there will be a general mass meeting for both men and women, at which Rev. J. R. Dallas of Columbus Ohio, who spoke to the men on last Sunday afternoon, will speak. The afternoon meeting will be at 2:45 o'clock.

Lutheran Aid Society.

The Ladies' Aid society of St. Paul's English Lutheran church met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. C. M. Thoman, of south High street. Mrs. J. L. Welch was assistant hostess. Rags were sewed for rugs and it was decided that the next meeting should be held Thursday, March 17, on account of the regular meeting day coming during Holy week.

Fite Missionary Society.

The Missionary society, of the Fite Memorial Baptist church, met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Sanderson, of Davids street, with a good attendance. The various circles of the society met Thursday, and the members sewed for the coming bazaar. Circle No. 1 met with Mrs. George Reynolds, of Fillmore street; Circle No. 2 met with Mrs. G. W. Smith, of Uncapher avenue, and Circle No. 3 with Mrs. Ora Dusang, of Gill avenue.

Nazarene Church Revival.

The revival meetings at the Nazarene church are being well attended. Two have been at the altar and a number have requested the prayers of the church. Rev. J. P. Mayberry of Philadelphia, will preach at 7:30 o'clock this evening on "The Great Question" and Sunday he will preach at three services.

Epworth Circle No. 6.

Circle No. 6, of the Epworth M. E. church met Thursday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. W. R. Demmon, of Delaware avenue. Two new members were enrolled in the circle who plans were made for an all-day sewing to be held March 9 at the home of Mrs. F. J. Schultz, of south Main street, when the members will sew for the City hospital. A special prayer service will be held the evening of March 10 at the home of Mrs. Frank King, of south State street.

McWilliams Class.

Mrs. H. Groves, Mrs. Bert Harper, Mrs. A. S. Keeler and Mrs. Margaret Jones were hostesses to the members of the McWilliams class of Trinity Baptist Sunday-school, Thursday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Groves, of Linden place. A reading, "Shall We Know Each Other There?" by Mrs. H. Groves, was followed by a vocal number, "We Shall Know Each Other There." Miss Emma Short read the 148th psalm and the program closed with a prayer. Miss Lida Ringer was a guest of the class.

Epworth Circle No. 7.

Circle No. 7, Epworth Aid society, met at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Metzger of south State street Thursday afternoon, with a good attendance. The time was spent in sewing.

The evening of March 8 the circle will hold a prayer service at the home of Dr. Jesse Swank.

The guests of the afternoon were Mrs. Margaret Scheer, Mrs. George C. Miller, Miss Sadie Hume and Mrs. Clarence Ault, of Napa, California.

Spiritualist Church Society.

Mrs. Ida Uncapher was hostess to the members of the Alsophone society, of the First Spiritualist church, Thursday afternoon, at her home on north Prospect street. There was a good attendance and three new members enrolled in the society. The afternoon was passed socially, and Mrs. Paul Cochert and Mrs. Harry Hastings contributed a piano duet. Mrs. H. M. Mounts sang a hymn and also gave a reading. Mrs. Mae Finnell gave several psychometrical readings.

Dr. Powell To Leave.

Dr. T. W Powell, the church evangelist to pastorless churches, Sunday will close his four-months engagement at Trinity Baptit church. The pastor, Dr. T. H. McAfee, who has been ill for the past several months, has recovered sufficiently to conduct the mid-week meetings and the Sunday services will be supplied. Dr. and Mrs. Powell, who have made many friends during their residence here, will return to their home in Mt. Gilead.

Weather: Fair and Warmer. SPRING STORE NEWS Friday, February 25.

Tomorrow a Notable Offering of 2 Special Groups of Fine New Spring Suits at $29.50 and $39.50

You'll be Delighted to Know That Such Splendid New Suits as These Can Now be Purchased at Prices as Low if Not Lower Than Those of 1914.

It is with great pleasure that we are enabled to announce for tomorrow this exceptional sale of choice new Spring Suits—high grade, desirable and fashionable in every way—at such very reasonable prices.

If you will recall, the best and most attractive suits you could buy back in those good old-fashioned days before the war at these prices—and then compare those values with these Spring Suits you will readily agree that these are indeed, good old-time values.

Your closest inspection will show that the materials are choice, high grade all wool serges and tricotines—that the tailoring is good in every respect and that the styles are new and exclusive.

We confidently look to see the entire lot of them go flying out in the course of two or three days.

One Group of Very Remarkable Serge & Tricotine Suits $29.50

Of navy all-wool serge and tricotine—these special $29.50 suits including a full range of sizes from 16 to 44.

Beautifully trimmed, many of them finished most attractively with hand embroidery or flat braid, some of them with silk floss stitchings to match the material.

Lined richly with figured pussy willow and flowered taffetas.

Included you will find the new Jap models and Russian blouse effects—box styles—flared and conservative plain tailored styles.

We were very fortunate in securing this remarkable lot of suits and are pleased to announce that each and every one of them are most exceptionally low at $29.50.

Handsome New Tricotine Suits Rare Value Giving at $35

In this collection you will find about 40 choice new models, newly developed in splendid tricotine. The greater number of them are navy blues with a good sprinkling of the new tans and reindeer shades.

Some of these models are beaded, others are touched with fancy braid, some are hand-embroidered, and still others show the new gold stitching and gold embroidery.

Among the styles are included the box effects, flaring models, kimono styles, eton and plain tailored styles.

Folks who see these splendid suits are going to be surprised that such values can be had this Spring for a price as low as $39.50.

Some of the Special Models Advertised are Displayed in Prospect St. Windows

Hundreds of Pieces of Fine New Spring Ginghams

This is the greatest gingham season we've ever experienced.

Nearly every day that passes we have to send in new orders for some of the attractive Spring styles that have quickly sold out.

Every day that passes sees Ginghams grow more and more popular. The best styles are selling out first. It is advisable to buy them early this season. The prices later on will not be lower and are quite likely to be higher.

Splendid 32-inch Ginghams ranging in price from 25c, 29c, 35c, 40c to 79c.

The Beautiful New Spring Waists at the New Prices

So surprisingly reasonable are the prices of the new Waists that we have had customers ask us what was wrong with them or whether they were "seconds."

No, indeed, they are not! Every Waist is a fresh, new Spring model, choice and desirable and of the finest quality in every respect.

Every Waist in our store is at the new lower price levels.

Brand new colored Organdy Waists in Rose, French Blue, Maize, Orchid and Nile at $2.95 and $3.95.

Very Exceptional New French Strap Wrist Gauntlet Gloves at $3.48

We have just received, specially for Saturday's selling, a new lot of very unusual French Gauntlet Gloves. These are the smart, strap-wrist style in a light Spring weight. A full range of sizes in brown, beaver and white. You will find them a great value at $3.48.

New 12-button Chamoisette Gloves. These suede finished, longer gloves are very smart this season and will be very popular during the coming months. In white, grey and pongee. The price is only $1.50.

16-button longer Chamoisette Gloves, suede finished in white and sand. This is an exceptionally good value at $1.75.

BASKETBALL

Game Saturday Night.

The Harding Reserve-Junior game is to be played in the High school gym Saturday evening. The Reserves have been showing good form against the first team lately, and as the Juniors were runners-up in the recent inter-class games, a good game is expected.

The game will start promptly at 8 o'clock. The admission will be twenty-five cents. No season tickets will be good for this game as it is a benefit for the Harding Reserves.

Sircom Petticoats

of Best Floral Heatherbloom Taffeta

All New Styles and regularly priced $2.50—Special

$1.89

We mention prominently the fact that these are Sircom Petticoats. Most women know that their brand is noted for beautiful and correct styles and they're perfectly made. These at $1.89 are fashioned of beautiful Persian heatherbloom and have deep, narrow plaited flounces. They'll do wonders in accentuating the slender silhouette.

Handsome Silk Petticoats—$4.95

Fashioned of fine silk jerseys in the bright or subdued colors — green, blues, black, navy, henna, etc. The styles are in the narrow plaited styles in bright combination colors. Like the $6.00 Petticoats of the good days.

OLD GLORY LONGCLOTH—this is a full 36 inch width and, because of its sheerness, is suitable for making the best undergarments. This one is special at, yard 23c

NO 2000 CAMEO LONGCLOTH—as sheer and soft as closely woven as cotton materials can be. Its regular price is 35c yard. Special for Saturday at, yard..... 25c

The Basement Store Offers a

Sale of Short Lengths

Including 500 Yards of New Dress Ginghams at 17½c yd.

They're new Spring plaids, small checks, etc.—all good qualities, the same that sell regularly at 25c yard. Included are numerous pink, blues and tan patterns so much in demand. The pieces run from 10 to 20 yards each, but of course you may buy any quantity you desire—17½c yard.

Best Apron Ginghams—15c yd.

These pieces also run from 10 to 20 yards each. All manner of blue checks are included, and the quality, though there's no name on them, looks to us very much like the very best. At any rate, they're great bargains at 15c yard.

Fine Unbleached Muslin—15c Yd.

You can buy these in any quantity just like you were buying from full pieces, as these run from 15 to 20 yards. This is a fine, smoothly woven quality, of good weight sufficient for sheets, pillow cases and best household uses.

Here's Spring Suits at $35 and $45 That Are Marvels of Value

Suits of such fine quality and exclusive style that most forcibly tell the story of how prices have changed between the past two seasons.

We believe that these two prices will be what most women will pay for their Spring Suits. It seems as though the makers have specialized on these two prices, because they've produced some suits that are conspicuously outstanding in their quality and beauty appeal.

Of course, we have assembled a host of models for your selection. Clever youthful models with box or coolie style jackets; some semi-tailored; others strictly tailored for those of quiet tastes. The skirts of many are finished with sashes and girdles of many kinds.

Twilled materials—serges, gabardines, etc., and wool bruellas are used almost exclusively this Spring, with navy blue, tan and grays the leading colors.

Have your suit all ready when the first Spring days arrive!

Wool Jersey Suits $19.50 and $15

Ideal Suits for general wear. They're made in semi-tailored styles — jackets are belted, skirts are plain tailored. They're made of all wool jersey in blue, brown, tans and dark green heather mixtures. For motoring, sports or general street wear these are most desirable.

Sale of White Materials

45 in. WHITE ORGANDY, 39c yd.—sheer and transparent, suitable for waists, dresses, collar and cuffs, etc. Only 39c yard.

40 in. Mercerized BATISTE, 59c yd.—a fine, soft and sheer quality for baby dresses, fine undergarments. White only—59c yard.

40 in. LINWEAVE, 39c yd.—snow white, sheer and transparent, woven of finest cotton threads. Much in demand for waists and dresses.

FATHER-SON BANQUET AT THE "Y" BUILDING

Mothers' Club Furnishes Dinner at Attractive Tables

DR. J. B SHOWERS, OF DAYTON, IS A SPEAKER

Program Opens with Music by Harding High School Orchestra—Seventh Annual Event.

The seventh annual father-son banquet was voted a success by the 315 men and boys who enjoyed the dinner and program given Thursday evening in the Y M C A building. The attendance was not so large at this meeting as in former years. As a number of the churches of the city have entertained the organization at dinners during the father-son week festivities.

The dinner was served by a committee from the Mothers' club at tables attractively decorated with tiny silk American flags. Music during the dinner was furnished by a sextet from the Harding High school composed of Albert Postle, Dwight Shoemaker, Chester Berry, Fred Almendinger, Rhu Austin and Virgil Shaw.

Opens with Music

The program opened with music by the orchestra and a prayer by Rev. F. E. Hawes pastor of Fifth Memorial Baptist church. The welcome address was made by Frederick Hosken and the response by O. H. Carrier, Y. M. C. A. secretary.

"Be More Than Dad" was the subject of a reading by Richard Scott and was followed by remarks on the father-son movement by M. S. Wagner, of Troy, father of Roy A. Wagner, secretary of the boys' division of the Y. M. C. A. "Here's to You, Dads," was the subject of a reading by Merle Morrison which was followed by the song, "America the Beautiful," by the company. Following the summer camp announcements an interesting address on the father-son movement was given by Dr. J. B. Showers, of the Bonebrake Theological seminary, Dayton.

Given Recognition.

CHARTER PRESENTATION IS BIG KIWANIS EVENT

Among Telegrams of Congratulation, One from Harding.

WHO VOICES REGRET ON SEVERING OLD HOME TIES

Charter Presented by Supreme Court Justice Benton Hough. Number of Addresses.

With telegrams of congratulation from President-Elect W. G. Harding, a charter member, and international officers, field representatives and other clubs, the Marion Kiwanis club officially took its place in the international Kiwanis organization with the presentation of the charter at the close of an elaborate dinner and entertaining program of speeches and music in the Masonic temple, Thursday night.

Justice Benson W. Hough, of Delaware, of the Ohio supreme court, presented the charter with the assertion that the Marion club is a success because of the work of the Marion men who have acquired the Kiwanis spirit and the prediction that the impetus of that spirit will carry the organization forward.

Change of Ideas.

"The exchange of ideas and business confidences is going to make this club so mutually helpful that it is going to carry on," Justice Hough stated. "Another reason for its assured success is that ere long in Marion other organizations are going to realize you amount to something, are doing something and have civic pride and spirit.

"The organization of this club is going to lead to a closer relation between towns in Ohio and is going to help Ohio and when that great man at Washington, that most distinguished Kiwanian hears of your progress the news is going to bring a smile of happiness to his face."

Dr. James W. McMurray, president of the Marion club, received the charter and in giving it to him Justice Hough said that it is an added pleasure to make the presentation for the club to one who has been his close friend for twenty years.

"We Build."

"We will truly try to live up to our organization's motto. 'We Build.'" Dr. McMurray promised in accepting the charter. "We will build well, with truth and business integrity for our cornerstone. We will build on the foundation of patriotism, civic pride and brotherly love and on that foundation we desire to erect a superstructure of education and high ideals. When I promise this for the club, I promise it as well for the next president of the United States."

American flags, streamers of blue, white and gold, the Kiwanis colors, and Kiwanis emblems were used in decorating the dining hall and potted plants, which also carried out the Kiwanis color scheme, were used on the long tables. Music was furnished throughout the serving of the meal by Bert's orchestra, which played a march as the Kiwanians and ladies took their places at the tables.

More Than 200 There.

Approximately 260 were in attendance, including delegations of forty from Delaware, twenty-two from Columbus, four from Toledo and two from Lima. Ladies of the Eastern Star faultlessly served the dinner, and A. H. Miler, of Toledo, Kiwanis governor of the Ohio district, acted as toastmaster. "America" was sung by the assembly as the opening number of the program and Rev. M. L. Buckley, pastor of the Central Christian church, gave the invocation. A number of Kiwanis songs were sung during the serving of the meal, with Ernst Earl as the song leader. During the dinner numerous miniature balloons were released and shortly after the program opened tin horns were distributed to each of the diners. Many substituted these noise makers for hand-clapping in applauding the various numbers on the program.

Grant E. Mouser, Jr., secretary of the Marion club, called the charter roll and each member stood as his name was announced. Telegrams of congratulations also were read, including this message from President-Elect Harding, dated St. Augustine, Florida, February 24.

Harding Message.

"I do not need to tell you that I am sorry not to be able to accept the invitation to be with the Kiwanis club on Thursday evening, but it is impossible, as you and all the members will understand. However, I want to extend my greetings and congratulations to the club, and to tell you how much we are going to miss the privilege of that delightful association with the our friends, of the old home town, that has meant so much to us. Please give the warmest remembrances of both Mrs. Harding and myself to the members."

Other Messages.

Included in these messages was one from J. Mercer Burnett, of Birmingham, Alabama, international president, and another from O. Samuel Cummings, Chicago, international secretary of Kiwanis, who sent his best wishes and congratulations "for the spread of the Kiwanis gospel of good fellowship, cooperation and service."

Mayor T. E. Andrews delivered the address of welcome and Mrs. C. L. Rutherford, with Mrs. H. K. Mouser at the piano, sang "To a Messenger" and "Down in the Forest." For an encore she sang a series of half-minute songs.

Edmund F. Arras, of Columbus, Kiwanis trustee international and former governor of the Ohio district, spoke of the Kiwanis ideals. "Loyalty, patriotism and faith in God have visualized the meaning of the motto 'We Build,'" Mr. Arras said.

H. Archibald Harris, of the Chicago Kiwanis club, told something of the history of Kiwanis. He said the first club was organized in Detroit in 1915 and now the organization has 425 clubs with a membership of 17,000. He asserted the association is built on the principles of truth, good fellowship, cooperation and service. Ernst Earl then sang "Immortal" and gave two encores. Mrs. H. K. Mouser acted as accompanist.

Largest Membership.

Pete Land, Akron, secretary of the Ohio district, announced that Marion has the largest membership on the occasion of the charter presentation of any club in the district, and he also called attention to the international convention which is to be held in Cleveland, June 20-25. W. R. Bodurtha, president of the Delaware club, which sponsored the Marion organization proposed a toast to the new club.

The Marion Kiwanis club held its first dinner the evening of January 4 shortly after the movement toward organization was begun, and it was announced that the charter list totals 187 members.

DEVELOPMENT OF AIRCRAFT

"America should have but one navy," he said. "At present there are various little navies, such as shipping board vessels, army transports and craft maintained by the coast guard and other services. All these should and eventually will be brought under navy control, with resultant economy and increased efficiency."

"Your famous order barring wine with the officers' mess is said to have aroused a great deal of criticism among officers of the navy, Mr Secretary. Have a majority of those officers come round to your way of thinking?"

"I shouldn't say they had come round to my point of view, exactly," he replied. "I should say that so far as I have learned, most of the officers of the navy, even those who were opposed to the order at the time, would not go back to the old system if they could."

"If you had the job to do over again, would you handle the Sims incident any differently?" Daniels was asked.

"When an officer is determined to break into print," said the secretary, "it is sometimes difficult to decide just how he should be treated.

"In a way, I am grateful to Sims. By stirring up a congressional investigation, he was the means of getting into the official records a true account of the work of the navy in the World war.

"I have always been a great believer in the right of free speech. Even during the war, I stood out for that principle. If I erred at all in the case of Sims, it was better to err on the side of greater freedom."

"Do you still believe in the so-called democratization of the navy?"

"The democratizing of the navy has just begun," said the secretary. "I have merely drawn the entering wedges. In the past officers were separated the officer from the enlisted men. That chasm must be bridged. The navy must be as democratic in its ratio. The man on the receiving room must be made to feel that he is the equal to an admiral in courage and patriotism and that he can be an admiral if he does his duty well and studies to qualify himself for the greater responsibility. But true democracy must come from men, not from any sentimental misconception of the real meaning of democratization."

Highly Technical.

"Much of the work of the navy is highly technical, Mr. Secretary. After eight years of experience, do you still believe the secretary of the navy should be a civilian?"

"I have spent nearly $5,000,000 since I have been secretary of the navy," he answered. "Next year, the secretary of the navy will spend $350,000,000 more. That is a civilian task."

"On the whole," said the secretary in summing up, "I have had eight very happy years, albeit eight years of very hard work. It has been a privilege to be secretary of the navy in the days of preparation for the war; it has been a truly great privilege to serve with men who have made such splendid records during the war. Though I shall be out of the navy in a few days now, I shall always be shipmates with the officers and men of the navy and tremendously interested in its affairs."

COLBY'S NOTE MADE PUBLIC

"The information was further conveyed," Colby stated, "that the reservations which had previously been made by this government regarding the island of Yap were based on the view that the island of Yap necessarily constitutes an indispensable part of any scheme of practical arrangement of cable communication in the Pacific and that if free and unhampered use should not be limited or controlled by any one power."

Undersecretary Davis of the state department, made it clear that the controversy as to the island of Yap was one between the United States and the allied powers and not one between this country and Japan.

Pending the decision of the international communications conference as to the disposition of the cables, all of the lines, both in the Atlantic and the Pacific, have since last January 1 been operated under the joint account of the five allied and associated powers participating in the cable settlement.

selections were susceptible of cancellation if last-minute considerations seem to warrant it. There was nothing in his declaration, however, to suggest that changes in the slate are probable.

Accepts Offer.

New York, Feb 25 - Herbert Hoover telephoned President-Elect Harding last night that he had accepted the offer of the cabinet post of secretary of commerce, George Barr Baker, his assistant, announced last night.

Mr. Hoover, in a statement made public by Mr. Baker, announced that he would continue to direct the policies of European relief.

Mr. Hoover's statement follows:

"President-Elect Harding last evening asked me to state that he has included me in his nominations for the cabinet as secretary of commerce. Senator Harding enters whole-heartedly into the plans for upbuilding the department, and wishes that I continue to direct the policies of the European relief.

MICHAEL COLLINS OUTRANKS DE VALERA

Is Sought All Over Ireland by British Forces.

Dublin, Feb. 25.—Michael Collins "commander-in-chief" of the Irish republican army, who is being sought by a great British army in Ireland and a vast force of secret service agents, was an eight-dollar-a-week bank clerk in London before the war. Collins came to Ireland to join the British army when the Sinn Fein rebellion occurred at Dublin, in 1916. He joined forces with the Irish republicans, however, being an Irishman by birth and a republican by sentiment and rapidly rose in the councils of the Sinn Fein, until he stands at the head of the military organization and really outranks de Valera in power and influence. British officials declare that if they could capture Collins they believe the militant campaign of the Sinn Fein would soon collapse.

Pluck usually wins. A man's success often depends upon his ability to pluck others.

THE UNDESIGNING WIDOW

By Helen E. Haskell

Copyright, 1910, by Public Ledger Co.

It All Depends Upon Your Angle of Vision, as Potiphar Williamson Discovered in His Study of the Female of the Specie From an Invalid's Chair

EVER since Potiphar Williamson had achieved manhood and a New York job that commanded a comfortable income he had been shying the designing woman. At thirty-five he considered his armor of anti-sentimentalism impregnable.

And then Potiphar was taken sick. For three weeks he was confined to his brass bed.

At the end of that time his general factotum—a neat Jap who had looked after Potiphar for years—moved him into the front room of the bachelor apartments, propped him up in his easy chair in front of the window, and left him with the latest magazines and a pitcher of ice water.

Potiphar read the magazines and drank the ice water, after which, feeling very tired, he leaned his head back luxuriously and dreamily studied the yellow front of the apartment-building across the street.

It was then, for the first time, that he saw her!

She was playing "Patty-cake, patty-cake, baker's man," with the little boy.

Her hair was brazenly golden and her face was nicely whitewashed with round, pink spots for cheeks. Every now and then she paused in the game to cast sheep's eyes in Potiphar's direction.

Potiphar was annoyed, and if, at the moment, he had not heard the front door close softly on the back of Haru, his Japanese servant, he would have returned to the four blank walls and two blank windows that bounded his bedroom.

But Haru having set out upon his daily morning visit to the market, Potiphar was left a prisoner in his armchair.

To shut out the view of the flirtatious siren across the way he picked up his magazine and tried to interest himself in an article on socialism. But it was tedious. The book felt heavy. His eyes ached.

He laid the magazine down with a sigh and leaned his head back among the cushions.

He detested blondes, and little boys who were constantly demanding amusement were an abomination. This child across the street—the brat was as brazen as his mother. He was waving a wabbly hand at Potiphar, his mother holding his fat wrist and deliberately grinning.

Potiphar turned his face away.

It was unheard of that an invalid could not convalesce in front of his own window without being annoyed by designing widows—the mother of the brat wore indecorous mourning with elbow sleeves.

Her black bracelets were calculatingly coquettish. No doubt the bodice of her frock had a V-shaped opening at the throat. It had.

Potiphar despised himself for having taken the pains to find out, for the bold little boy immediately wafted a kiss toward him.

Potiphar fumed and again took up the magazine.

Just then his mind was distracted by the opening of the front door and the appearance of Haru, a market basket filled with provisions on his arm. Again he glanced at the window opposite. The widow and the little boy were gone.

There was no need now for his return to his bedroom and the contemplation of the whitewashed walls of the court. He was safe for the time being from the blandishments of the designing woman across the way.

He leaned back and closed his eyes. He felt suddenly lonely. He wished—but what sentimentality! They were all alike under the skins—even the woman of his romantic dreams with the gentle voice and the softly waving bands of brown hair.

It was at 5 o'clock that Haru brought the great package into the room and, undoing it, revealed a brass cage. In it, hopping from perch to perch, was a yellow canary.

Potiphar, with an exclamation of surprise, reached for a small envelope attached to the top of the cage.

Opening it he pulled out a card, both sides of which were covered with fine handwriting as easily decipherable as print.

"I am sending my canary to keep you company during your convalescence. He is a cock. His name is Dick. Yes, I have read 'Molly Make-Believe,' else I could never have thought of doing this, as I am not at all original. If Dick is not welcome I beg him to Apartment 21, the Dresden."

"The brazen hussy," said Potiphar Williamson under his breath. "I'll send the thing back. She must think me a boob, Haru," he went on, turning to the Jap, who had thrust his fingers through the wires of the cage, and was grinning delightedly as the bird pecked at it. "Take this canary across the street and leave it with the elevator boy. Tell him it is for Apartment 21. It was left here by mistake."

Very early the following morning Potiphar was again ensconced in the easy chair by the window. But it was almost 10 o'clock when the widow pulled up her shades, threw open her window, leaned out to look toward the river and then, straightening up, began to go through some deep breathing exercises.

Having finished her deep-breathing exercises the widow disappeared, and Potiphar, he watched for her until 3 o'clock, when weariness compelled him to return to his bed, saw no more of her that day.

But at 6 o'clock a letter in a square white envelope with a deep mourning border was thrust under his door.

Haru brought it to him and he immediately recognized the handwriting as the same that had appeared on the card the day before. He tore open the envelope nervously and pulled out a closely written correspondence card. It read:

My Neighbor:

You are even less human than I supposed. I believed that the lively companionship of my little bird would help you pass the tedious hours of your convalescence. It is evident that you misunderstood my motive in sending Dick to you. He seems glad to be back. He doubtless likes crotchety old bachelors no better than does his mistress.

YOUR DRESDEN NEIGHBOR.

December 2.

"Of all the uncalled-for impertinence," exclaimed Potiphar, tossing the letter to the table. "A crotchety old bachelor, am I? Ha, ha! Crotchety, no doubt, because I did not yield to her transparent wiles."

Several times during a night of broken sleep he caught himself thinking of the widow and her little boy. It irked him. He longed for morning. Would it never come?

It was not until almost noon that they were raised, and the widow, in her distractingly becoming weeds, was seen drawing on her gloves while she leaned out to look at the sky, which threatened rain. Twice she glanced casually in Potiphar's direction, and the second time Potiphar was certain that she smiled.

Quite accidentally he smiled back, which seemed to frighten her, for she pulled down her veil and turned away at once, taking with her the little boy, who had suddenly appeared from the back of the apartment, hatted and coated, ready for the street.

By craning his neck, Potiphar could see them a few minutes later as they left the apartment house and started toward the subway.

The widow carried a tightly rolled umbrella, but she wore very thin and absurdly high-heeled pumps. As nearly as Potiphar could make out they were made of black satin. She would catch her death of cold in case it rained or turned suddenly cold.

The woman certainly needed somebody to look after her—going about in pumps in December. It was suicidal!

He leaned back in his chair with a sigh. He wished—. Before his mental vision flashed the face of the woman of his dreams, for all men have dreams, even crotchety old bachelors!

It was a gentle face, framed in dark hair and lighted with a pair of tender brown eyes, as deep and soft as velvet. The kind of a face one sees sometimes in old-fashioned prints and daguerreotypes, its expression broodingly maternal.

And yet—he had smiled encouragement to that bold creature across the street. The recollection annoyed him.

He pulled the letter in the black-bordered envelope from the pocket of his dressing gown. Then he rang for Haru.

"Bring me my portfolio, please," he said shortly. The boy brought it, and Potiphar immediately began a letter.

Once he paused to look across at the deserted apartment.

"I shall leave nothing to the lady's imagination," he chuckled. "A wretchedly old bachelor, am I? Less human than she thought. I'll be equally frank with my neighbor."

WHEN at last the letter was finished and dispatched to Apartment 21, the Dresden, Potiphar settled himself here among his pillows, utterly spent and weak.

The letter would not be delivered before morning. He would be strong enough by that time to thoroughly enjoy the widow's chagrin.

It was over the crawl the following morning that Potiphar came to the conclusion that the widow's designs were past understanding.

He had expected that she would appear in her most enchanting habiliments after receiving his letter. Instead, the raised window-shades disclosed her wrapped round in a mannish-looking bathrobe of ugly drab wool, with a bandage around her throat.

Her hair was twisted into a tight knot on the top of her head, and every now and then she buried her small nose in a huge square of white linen.

Then she walled the little boy, and, with her cheek against the top of his curly head, read the letter about to him, folded it up, pressed it against her cheek, and again thrust it into the bosom of the bathrobe without even a sidelong glance in Potiphar's direction.

AS THE letter was returned to its hiding-place, Potiphar blushed again. He was annoyed, and yet—the wiles of the widow were getting under his skin.

She might have gone on for weeks using the ordinary feminine devices to attract Potiphar, and his pulse would have remained normal. But the ugly bathrobe, the bandage around her throat, the big handkerchief, the cherishing of that disagreeable letter—all combined to throw him off his guard.

He regretted the brutal sarcasm that had brought tears. He was tempted to write an apology. He rang for Haru and ordered his portfolio, but before he had made the first scratch with his fountain pen he discovered that the widow herself was writing a letter, working her pen with her right hand and her handkerchief with her left.

Once she paused and looked out of the window dreamily and straight at Potiphar, who had raised himself on his elbow to get a better view of her. He started and sank back into his pillows.

Almost immediately the widow went on with her letter.

It was delivered to Potiphar in the late afternoon mail, together with a square package neatly tied with red twine. The letter read:

I am more sorry for you than ever, my neighbor. At first I pitied you because you seemed so very weak and lonely. Since I have discovered your state of mind I am alarmed for you. I am sorry that you dislike birds and little boys and yellow hair. Perhaps you object to sunshine, too, but I am sure you will like the pictures in the scrapbook I am sending to you with this. They are Kirby's and very human. I have the "effrontery" to send them to you because you are melancholy and ennuied with your own disagreeable companionship. Your frankly disapproving

DRESDEN NEIGHBOR.

Apartment 21.
December 3.

The shades across the street were already drawn when Potiphar received the letter. If the widow was curious about the reception of her communication, she disguised it well.

It was unheard of that an invalid could not convalesce in front of his own window without being annoyed by designing widows.

Potiphar read the thing twice, stuck it under his pillow and turned to the scrapbook. Of all New York's newspaper artists, Kirby was his favorite.

In some respects the widow's tastes ran parallel with his own. He half wished he had not returned the bird. The golden cage would have been effective against his sage-green wallpaper and—yes, a golden head would be attractive outlined against the sage-green of the fireplace chair.

He closed his eyes. A yellow mist obscured the face of the woman of his dreams.

Gradually it took form, assuming the shape of the designing widow. But was she designing? Or merely sympathetic?

Surely there was no artful lure in her make-up this morning. She turned another page of the scrapbook, then sat up, reached for his portfolio, took his fountain pen and began to write.

He said:

Thank you, my neighbor; I appreciate your kindness in lending the scrapbook. I also apologize for my letter of yesterday. I am sending this by my man, together with an excellent prescription for influenza. It will break up a cold in a few hours. Sincerely and anxiously yours,

POTIPHAR WILLIAMSON.

Potiphar hesitated for some time before setting down his signature. If she really was a designing harpy it might put him in her power. The thought of her chin as it rested on the little boy's head decided him. He found a mother could not be altogether mischievous.

The next morning, early, he sent Haru out for a cloth elephant, which he dispatched to Apartment 21 with his card, and then waited impatiently for the shades across the way to be raised.

They remained down until very late; and when they at last went up it was only to reveal a stout colored woman in a blue dress and white apron.

For two days neither the widow nor the little boy were visible. Potiphar worked himself into quite a fever of anxiety. They were doubtless ill. Finally he dispatched a note of inquiry to their apartment.

He wrote:

My Dear Neighbor—I am yours to command if there is anything I can do for you.

and signed himself "Devotedly yours."

Almost immediately came a note in reply. It read:

Dear Mr. Williamson—Thank you for the influenza prescription. Your sending it indicates a marked improvement in your condition. I shall have it filled at once.

Amusedly yours, M. B.

AS POTIPHAR finished the note he looked up and into the widow's smiling face. She was in her full war paint. Her hair was more golden than ever. Her face was neatly whitewashed and decorated with the round pink cheeks.

On her head was perched the piquant mourning bonnet. Her wrists were circled with black ribbon bracelets tied in coquettish bows. She was slowly drawing on her gloves. The little boy snuggled against her, wafting kisses in Potiphar's direction.

Alas, poor Potiphar! His heart pounded like an engine with its exhaust open. He felt the blood mounting hot to his temples. He knew that he had been bowled over, entered, ensnared; and he was glad of it.

He smiled straight into the widow's eyes, then waved a gay salute to the little boy. As they turned from the window he settled back among his pillows.

How pleasant it would be to have a little boy to "rough-house" at the end of the day. What an appetite a fellow could work up for dinner. And then— Again he pictured the widow's golden head against the sage-green back of his fireside chair.

He set his lips in a determined line, reached for his portfolio and started a letter. It was formal enough to have suited the most fastidious of Grundies, but it was insistent, too. It demanded a personal interview.

Several days passed before an answer came, and it put him off. The widow sent belated thanks for the elephant, and said she had stood the beast on the mantel. But she could not allow Potiphar to call.

There were conventions that must be observed, especially in a city like New York. She was glad that he was feeling so much better, and she closed with a "good-by" that sounded final.

But Potiphar saw through the widow. She felt a sentimental regard for him, else why had she stood the elephant on the mantel instead of giving it to the little boy to play with.

He waited three days; and then, when the apartment had been thoroughly refurbished, sent another note containing the single word:

"When?"

"Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock," came the answer.

WEDNESDAY. Two days away. Potiphar could hardly wait. He walked for miles nicely pacing the length of his apartment. He lost his appetite and some flesh, which alarmed his physician. He slept badly; in fact, he worked himself up into such a nervous state that by Wednesday night he was more fit for the hospital than for a call upon the widow.

What a bomb he would drop into her preconceived notions of his taste in women, when he told her how much more attractive he had thought her that morning in the negligee of her woolly bathrobe than she had ever seemed to him in the full glory of her war paint.

Before presenting himself at the Dresden, Potiphar visited a florist's shop and a confectioner's, and loaded himself with yellow chrysanthemums for the widow, and a papier mache Brownie filled with gum drops for the little boy.

Then he strode boldly into the Dresden, and sent his name to Apartment 21.

A few minutes later a neat maid was ushering him into the widow's parlor and—but the widow was nowhere in sight. Instead, a trim woman with soft dark hair and amused eyes was coming toward him, her hand outstretched. She was dressed very simply in black with narrow bands of white at throat and sleeves.

"Welcome, neighbor," she said. Her voice was low and gentle.

POTIPHAR took the outstretched hand and, in the confusion of the moment, pumped it up and down. Meantime his eyes were roving. Where was the widow, and where was the little boy? Also where was the red-shaded lamp, with which he was familiar, the red wall paper and—

"I—I beg your pardon, madam. I seem to have made a mistake," he stammered, his eyes resting on first one unfamiliar object of furniture and then another. "I was looking for—" The sentence went unfinished. His gaze fastened itself on a cloth elephant standing on the mantel. He felt the blood mount to his temples. He looked questioningly from the elephant to the strange woman.

"I have named the beast Potiphar," she laughed.

Then she reached out her hands and took the great bunch of golden chrysanthemums.

"Are they for me?" she asked, removing their paper covering.

"Yes—yes," acquiesced Potiphar, vainly trying to stuff the fat Brownie filled with gum drops into his coat-tail pocket. During the operation the Brownie's head came off, and the gum drops rolled over the floor. "I brought them for the little boy," began Potiphar, bending to pick up the candies.

"The little boy?" questioned his hostess.

"Yes, your little boy," replied Potiphar, very red, and then, plunging an apologetically, as he saw the surprised look in the woman's face, "I thought you were somebody else. I owe you a thousand apologies. I'm sure I don't know what you must think of me, writing you as I did, and sending you things. I—"

In his confusion Potiphar broke down. The whole thing certainly was a devil of a mess. The woman laughed.

"Do not apologize. Your letters were deliciously amusing. I read between the lines that you thought me some artful minx who had set her cap for you. That is why I consented to letting you call. I thought it would be well for you to see that your interested neighbor was only a plain, middle-aged woman whose heart went out to the young man across the street who seemed so very ill and lonely. I lost a dear one a few months ago. He died among strangers. It was for his sake that I wrote you as I did and sent Dick to keep you company."

A silence fell between them which was finally broken by Potiphar, whose mind had worked to the influenza cure.

"I still feel that I have many things to explain. There was the prescription—"

A dimple flashed into the cheek of his hostess.

"You see I thought you were the lady with the little boy—the blonde one—the widow—"

"Oh, you put me in specific form, then. Now, I wonder who you thought I was."

Potiphar went to the window and looked out.

Across the way he could see the windows of his own apartment, but they were on a lower level than those of hers.

"I took you to be the widow who lives just below you—exactly opposite me."

"Mrs. Le Mar!" exclaimed his hostess. "But she is not a widow. Her husband is in vaudeville. I know her through her little boy, who told me that his papa was coming back today."

POTIPHAR opened his mouth to speak, but closed it again weakly. For two weeks he had been thinking of the widow's golden head resting against the green background of his fireplace chair. And now—He felt that he had been jilted, humiliated. Every word of his hostess was like a knife-thrust in his heart.

He rose, held out his hand, awkwardly. "I must be going," he said. "I find I am not as strong as I thought."

His hostess looked at him anxiously.

"Let me bring you a glass of wine," she said.

"I thank you; no," said Potiphar, edging toward the door. "Good-night."

"Good-night." There was the suggestion of disappointment in the woman's voice. But Potiphar did not heed it.

He rushed to the elevator, rang the bell furiously, then leaned weakly against the grilled shaft. His mind was in chaos. He had been duped. His affections had been trifled with. He had fallen into the snare set by a designing widow. But she was not a widow. Her husband was in vaudeville.

The elevator whisked him to the street floor. He plunged through the door and then out into the night. Was ever before a man in such a predicament?

Having refitted his ideals to the pattern of that blonde woman across the street, whose character he had thought revealed by certain gifts and certain letters, he found that the readjustment in his tastes, arrived at with such difficulty, had been a waste of effort.

He had fallen in love, head over heels, in love, and—with the wrong woman!

He made his way to his own apartment. Force of habit took him at once to the window. Across the way three figures were silhouetted against a soft background of red light. The widow's husband had returned. She and the little boy flaunted their happiness before Potiphar's tortured eyes. Had

"Oh-ho-ho, ha-ha-ha!" she said. Her voice was low and mellow

For Girls to Make Homecraft

A Patriotic Party

BY CAROLYN SHERWIN BAILEY

Why not surprise your guests at your patriotic party with some new decorations and favors? How about a jolly Thrift Bag to begin with?

The Thrift Bag

Use red, white, and blue cambric sewed in strips, or red and white decorated with blue stars or stripes. Make the bag the size of a grab bag, and fill it with small favors, wrapped up in red, white and blue tissue paper so as to conceal their shapes. These should be inexpensive, but suggestive of thrift, thimbles, little blank books marked Bank Book, thrift stamps, toy washboards, flat irons, brooms, small cook books, and the like. Each guest will find a surprise in grabbing, and perhaps a suggestion for patriotism in 1920 as well.

A Flag Pie

Fill a round tin with small favors or bags of candies, each wrapped in tissue paper, and having a ribbon attached long enough to reach from the center of the table to each guest's place. Stuff lunks in this pie with shredded paper, cover the top with red crepe paper cutting slits in it through which the ribbons are drawn, and tie wide red, white and blue ribbons around the edge to cover up the sides of the tin. Stick small flags in the top of the pie until it is covered with the colors.

At the end of the party feast, the guests pull their ribbons, break the pie, and enjoy its contents.

Table Decorations

These may fill a basket in the center of the table, or be scattered over the white table cloth.

Quaint little soldiers can be made by cutting bodies of tarlatan in blue, just a round head, a straight body and arms and legs. Put a large pink peppermint drop inside the tarlatan head, and draw a face on it. Stuff a body with shredded blue tissue paper so that it will stand. Give the soldier a cocked hat, and a peppermint stick for a gun, and stand one of the regiment at each place at the party table.

TWO MARION CO-EDS ON LANTERN'S STAFF

Girls To Get Out College Sheet March 2.

What suggestion comes with reposting Diogenes? Why, a lantern, of course.

What thought comes with the mention of a lantern in connection with Diogenes? Why, an honest man, of course.

Well, down at Ohio State university there is a varsity sheet called the Lantern. It's published by the students and for the students, and Charles Seffner Nelson, of Marion, a senior in Ohio State, is the editor.

Wednesday, March 2, "the end of a perfect day," is to be celebrated by the co-ed Lantern staff with box lunches, popcorn and candy served as the Lanterns dip from the press. But no men are to be allowed in the office that day—it's to be strictly for the "weaker sex." The college girls are to get out the entire Lantern edition. Two Marion co-eds are to be reporters. They are Miss Kathryn Sweeney and Miss Geneva Stimmer, and they are proud of the fact that they have been selected for the job because it shows that they are talented. To draw a place on the staff of the Lantern is regarded generally as a high college honor.

Labor Urges Veto of Bill.

Washington, Feb. 25. — President Wilson was urged to veto the Winslow-Townsend bill as "an unjustified and unjustifiable concession to the railroad owners who have shown a wanton disregard for laws and lawful processes," in a resolution adopted here by the executives of national and international trade unions affiliated in the American Federation of Labor.

Agreement on Tariff Bill.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Differences in the Fordney emergency tariff bill, as it passed the house and senate, were smoothed out by conference committee of the two branches of congress and the battle-scarred measure was sent back to the house for final action.

MRS. DELMA METZ BADLY BURNED IN GAS EXPLOSION

Force of Which Breaks Windows in Her Home.

ONE OF BROKEN WINDOWS LOCATED IN SECOND STORY

Mrs. Metz Is Felled to Floor, Is Baking Pies—Burner Goes Out.

Mrs. Delma Metz was badly burned about the face, neck and arms this morning at 10:30 o'clock in a gas explosion at her home, No. 565 Herman street. The force of the explosion was so great that it threw Mrs. Metz to the floor, damaged the stove and broke two large windows in the front of the house, one of them on the second floor.

Mrs. Metz was baking pies at the time of the accident. She lighted the two burners under the oven and placed one pie in to bake. In a few minutes she had prepared another pie for the oven and when she opened the door the explosion took place.

Hair Burned Off.

Mrs. Metz was not injured in the fall, but her hair was burned and her eyelashes and eyebrows burned off. This afternoon she was resting easily and did not complain much of being in pain. It is not thought that the burns are of a serious nature.

Employes of the gas company inspected the stove after the accident and are of the opinion that one of the burners under the oven went out after it had been lighted. They think this caused the gas to form in the oven after the first pie had been placed in it and the air reaching the gas when Mrs. Metz opened the door to place the second pie in the oven caused the explosion.

FUNERALS

John E. Jones Funeral.

The body of John E. Jones arrived here last night from Sandusky and was taken to the home of a daughter, Mrs. Emma Bodman, No. 537 Senate street, where the funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. J. G. Selter officiating. Interment will be made in the Pleasant Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Frank Ellis Buried.

The body of Mrs. Frank Ellis, of Delavan, Illinois, interred in the Marion cemetery Thursday, was accompanied here by two of her daughters, Mrs. William T. Dickson and Mrs. T. H. McKinstry, of that city.

Gambrill Funeral.

The funeral of Caleb H. Gambrill will be held from the Curtis & Company undertaking establishment, Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock, Rev. A. L. Vandegrift, of Green Camp, officiating. The services will be in charge of Kosciusko I. O. O. F. lodge, and interment will be made in the Marion cemetery.

STATE TO BUILD STRIP ALONG MARYSVILLE ROAD

From Corporation Line to Hocking Valley Railroad.

The contract for the construction of a hard road on the Marion-Marysville road will be awarded by the state highway department, March 18, according to announcement made by the county commissioners this morning. The portion of the road to be improved is between the Marion corporation line and the Hocking Valley railroad and is 1.82 miles in length. It is estimated that a brick road will cost $68,-003.64, the contractor to furnish the brick. This estimate is reduced to $49,393.84, the state to furnish the brick. The estimate for asphalt is $63,577.60.

CITY IN BRIEF

They Attend Indiana Burial—Mr. and Mrs. Roy Watson, of north Greenwood street, have returned from Ft. Wayne, where last Friday they attended the funeral of Mr. Watson's father, Sylvanus Watson.

Will Set Meeting Date—Date for regular meetings will be decided on at a called meeting of the Woman's auxiliary of the American legion in the assembly room at the public library next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The personnel of the various committees also will be announced at that time.

Knights of Columbus Option—It became known today that the Knights of Columbus have taken a thirty day option on the City market house on north State street, the option to expire early next month. For a year or more the Knights of Columbus have been considering a proposition for building a home. The market-house property is controlled by W. B. Denman, of Delaware avenue.

Yulick Taken to Pen—Mat Yulick, Austrian, this morning was taken to the Ohio State penitentiary in Columbus to begin serving his life sentence for the murder of Elmer Edwards at the Scioto power plant of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric company last December. Sheriff Frank A. Washburn took the prisoner to the penitentiary. Yulick was found guilty of first degree murder with a recommendation for mercy by a jury in the common pleas court last Friday night.

Hearing Continued Indefinitely—The hearing of Loren McClure on a charge of threatening his wife, which was to have been held in the mayor's court, Thursday afternoon, was continued indefinitely on request of the attorneys in the case.

Seeks Missing Brother—Mayor T. E. Andrews is in receipt of a letter from Edith Baum, of North Norwood, Cincinnati, asking him and the local police to assist her in locating her brother, Walter Baum, who disappeared last September and has not been heard from. The missing man was thirty-eight years old and weighed 170 pounds. He had suffered two strokes of paralysis and during one of the spells wandered away.

Marion Youth Escapes—Earl Birtcham, of this city, who was being held at Delaware in connection with a grocery robbery there a few weeks ago, escaped from the Delaware jail yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock and no trace of him has been secured. Birtcham, who is about twenty-two years of age, had gone out in his shirt sleeves to empty ashes and then made his getaway, having concealed his coat in the bottom of the ash pan. Lorin and James Durbin, also of this city, who robbed the store, pleaded guilty and were sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory. Birtcham pleaded not guilty and was being held for trial.

New Motor Car Company—Permanent quarters have been established by the Victory Motor Car company at No. 182 north State street, the north room of the large modern garage between the railroads, and a new show room has just been completed by the company. The officers of the company, which was recently organized, are Lyman D. Jones, general manager, and W. W. Wohlfarth, sales manager. This new company has secured the district agency for the Haynes automobile for four counties, Marion, Wyandot, Union and Logan counties. Open and closed cars, the latest product of the Haynes factory, are being shown. Mr. Jones, general manager of the local company, is a classmate of Roscoe C. Hoffman, graduate of Purdue university and designer of the Haynes six motor. The first layout of this motor was made by Mr. Huffman while he was still in school and details of design were discussed by him and Mr. Jones before it was presented to the Haynes company.

Entertainment at Waldo.

Waldo, O., Feb. 25.—[Special.]—The Alabama Blues gave a successful entertainment Thursday evening at Waldo. The program consisted of singing, dancing and monologues and was attended by about 200 persons.

Gompers Awarded Victory Loan Medal

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor has been awarded a victory loan medal by the Treasury Department for patriotic services in behalf of the Liberty Loan. The medal was made from metal of captured German cannon and is inscribed with the words "Awarded Samuel Gompers by the United States Treasury Department in recognition of patriotic service in behalf of Liberty Loans."

CUTS OFF CANADIAN LIQUOR SHIPMENTS

Order Puts into Effecet Portions of Recent Ruling.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Orders putting into effect portions of the recent opinion of the acting attorney general that shipments of liquor from one foreign country to another through American territory violates the prohibition act have been sent to all custom offices, it was announced at the treasury department.

The particular immediate effect of the regulations, officials said, will be to cut off liquor shipments from Canada through Detroit or Ogdensburg for transshipment at New York for Cuba or elsewhere.

That part of the acting attorney general's opinion holding that it is illegal for ships bound from one foreign country to another with liquor cargoes to touch at American ports still is under consideration, it was said. Regulations covering such cases, officials indicated, will be issued only after a most careful study, as the question is one of far-reaching effect. Should the opinion be enforced literally, it is expected that some foreign governments will enter a protest, as many of their ships now call at American ports for fuel while on voyages from one foreign port to another.

WANT UNION LABOR LEADER IN CABINET

Request Made by Organized Labor's Representatives.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Organized labor called upon President-elect Harding to appoint to his cabinet as secretary of labor "a recognized representative of organized labor" and "a real spokesman of the working people of our country, and who understands the toilers."

The request, made in the form of a telegram to the president-elect, was declared by labor leaders to be practically an indorsement of such a man as James Duncan, Quincy, Mass., a vice president and member of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, whom they regard as the one candidate who is "recognized representative of organized labor."

Reports that James J. Davis, Pittsburgh, had been selected by Mr. Harding as his labor secretary, were not referred to in the message, which was signed by President Gompers, the members of the executive council and representatives of the national and international unions affiliated in the American Federation and the representatives of the four railroad brotherhoods. "We have no desire to name any special person for this office, but we respectfully request, as citizens of our country, that the man to be appointed to represent us in your cabinet shall be a recognized representative of organized labor," the message read.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Miss Esther M. Jack, a young woman of Williston, North Dakota, who has made a success in the engineering profession, was given the honor of presiding over the recent annual convention of the North Dakota Society of Engineers, at Bismarck.

Mrs. Isaac Tripp, an eighty-four-year-old woman whose home is near Cloud Bay, Ontario, maker a business of fur-trapping. Recently while making the daily round of her traps she perceived a big timber wolf and brought it down with one shot from her rifle.

Enrlish women's club are much elated over the success of Miss Ilona Nomanton, the first woman law student and member of the Middle Temple. In the examinations marking the completion of her first year as a student Miss Nomanton captured a "first" in constitutional law and legal history, a second in Roman law, and a second in criminal law and procedure.

A one-piece frock, perhaps with a little cape attached, buttoned up to the throat with silver or black buttons. A silver girdle or a black patent leather belt, with a useful little bag hanging from it, to hold pencil and paper, handkerchief and smelling-salts. A small hat with no feathers, but plain trimming of ribbon bows. This is the ideal dress for jury women, suggested by Lady Alexander, who is known as London's best-dressed woman.

MORE THAN 1,000 ATTEND BROUWER SONG RECITAL

Program Given at Epworth Church Last Night.

HUSBAND AND WIFE RENDER FINE PROGRAM

Mrs. Brouwer Is Director of Music in the Rural Schools. Epworth Choir Leader.

[illegible] is enjoyed an evening of [illegible] music at the Epworth [illegible] church, Thursday evening when Herman J Brouwer, supervisor of music in the county [illegible] and director of the choir of the First M E church, and his wife, Mrs Shaw Brouwer, appeared in joint recital, assisted by Miss Clara H Leffler as violinist, and Mrs W F Dombaugh and Miss Ruth Zick as accompanists

The church was well filled, more than 1 000 people being regaled with a program of exceptional merit each number of which received enthusiastic applause. No admission was charged, but a silver collection was taken to defray expenses.

Mr Brouwer, who has a rich baritone voice of unusual range and power, is comparatively a stranger to Marion, having come here only last fall, but his musical ability has already won him much favor and a wide acquaintance. He is a graduate of the Detroit Conservatory of Music and a pupil of Frederick Intropidi and Saenger and also William Shakespeare, of London, England. He came here from London, Canada, and in addition to his church work, conducts a studio at his home, No 185 south Main st.

A Fine Vocalist.

Mrs Brouwer is also a talented singer, possessing a rich soprano voice of great beauty, and her singing Tuesday evening was one of the treats of the program Mrs Brouwer is a graduate of the Lyceum Arts conservatory of Chicago, and a pupil of Mrs. Carol B MacDermid

Miss Leffler, Marion's well-known violinist, needs no introduction to a Marion public, her excellent playing having won her wide recognition among the city's best musicians and appeared exceptionally well last night.

Mrs. Dombaugh organist at the First M E church, and Miss Ruth Zick also talented Marion musicians were excellent accompanists.

Mr Brouwer opened the program with the prologue from "Pagliacci," by Leoncavallo, and sang through an intensely interesting program with selections especially chosen to please his audience

Dramatic Intensity.

In the singing of "Obstination" by Fontenailles he showed the powerful rich voice of the singer subdued to the softest pianissimo The Erlking" one of Schubert's songs was characterized by dramatic intensity. In his last group of songs Mr Brouwer favored the audience with lighter music, singing delightfully "Morning" by Oley Speaks "A Man's Song," by Harris and "When Young Men Go Courting," by Phillips

Mrs Brouwer in her charming voice gave the audience "Vissi D'arte, Vissi D'amore" by Puccini, and in her group of songs "Two Folk Songs of Little Russia," by Zimbalist "Ishtar" by Spross "Alone upon the Housetops," by Galloway; "If You Would Love Me," by MacDermid, and "Ah' Love but a Day," by Gilberte.

Miss Leffler played beautifully "Adagio" from "Concerto in G Minor," by Bruch, and a group of selections. "Ave Maria," by Schubert-Wilhelmi, "Orientale" by Cesar Cui, and "Pierrot gai," by Trimdelli.

BUCKEYE BRIEFS

Murder Charge Against Husband.

Norwood O, Feb 25—Will Carr Dawson, former paymaster of the Cincinnati chemical works, who is charged with the murder of his wife, Alice, was held to the grand jury without bail. Mrs Dawson was shot and killed while on the rear porch of her home.

Manslaughter Charged.

Chillicothe, O. Feb. 25—Rube Ogden surrendered himself to the police here and admitted that he was the driver of the automobile which ran over and killed Albert Maurer, 47, clothing store clerk, here He was charged with manslaughter and held under $5,000 bond

Court Appoints Receiver.

Columbus, Feb 25—On the application of Edward O Sterne and other stockholders of the Rotary Tire and Rubber company of Zanesville, B H. Loveless, secretary and treasurer of the Atomized Fuel company, was appointed receiver for the company by Judge Duncan in common pleas court.

Enjoins Car Fare Boost.

Cincinnati, Feb. 25—Increase of car fare here from 8½ to 9 cents on March 1 was forbidden by Judge Matthews, who granted a temporary injunction The traction company claims an accumulated deficit of $655,000, which, under the service at-cost franchise, would permit it to increase fares The city denies such a deficit exists

Shaw to Be Chairman.

Columbus, Feb 25—Marshall Sheppey, Toledo, E. C. Shaw, Akron D. I. E. Harris, Columbus, and Dr. E M. Boehr, Cincinnati, the newly appointed members of the board of administration, will assume their duties this afternoon. They will first hold a conference with Governor Davis at his office, after which they will go to the offices of the administration board. By reason of being the short term member, Mr. Shaw will be elected chairman of the board

THE HUB OF COMMERCE.

Daily Proverb—"A detractor is his own foe and the world's enemy."

Lloyd George says there are terrible days ahead for the people of England, but he leaves us in doubt whether he plans to cut out booze or tea.

Philadelphia's comments on the sleeping sickness in New York are a bit remindful of San Francisco's references to Los Angeles' recent "fires."

Something tells us that Colonel Bryan's platform has something in it that will obviate the possibility that it may appeal to Governor Edwards, of New Jersey.

The report that Dorothy Dalton has lost part of her wardrobe looks like a clever piece of press work, but why didn't her press agent cinch the thing by going all the way?

Strawberries have been on the market for some time, but old Mother Nature has not yet applied to them the tint that makes them appetising to the eye and pleasing to the palate.

The Ohio State Journal man, without so much as the indication of a smile, says he is willing to bet that the paragrapher of this bright luminary is fifty-five. What a poker player he would make!

We have often wondered if the people who are forever claiming that America hasn't any literature realize that they are offering a gratuitous insult to the Hoosier literary belt.

The prices of furs are dropping, so we assume that the girls will be able to pass through the coming summer with no more than the customary degree of exposure.

"About the only reorganization the Democratic party needs at this time," says Colonel Bailey in the Houston Post, "is the recruiting of something to organize." The colonel is generally an enthusiast in politics, but his newspaper sense will not permit him to get away from the verities.

It is said that Count Hohenzollern is "suffering from exaggerated absent-mindedness," but he's not alone in that respect. All Europe appears to have forgotten interest-paying dates.

A scientific note tells us that "a form of telephone has been invented that enables persons to talk to deaf persons in hospitals in a voice as low as a whisper without disturbing other patients." But why should a whispered conversation over any old phone, outside a hospital or in, disturb any one?

PLAN ALL RIGHT; EXECUTION BAD.

Free seeds, with the compliments of your congressman, have been "added" out of existence. The agricultural appropriation bill as passed by the house authorized the expenditure of $300,000 for the free distribution of seeds, but the bill as reported out by the senate committee was minus this provision.

The original purpose of the free seed distribution was not so bad. It will be remembered that formerly the seed packets bore a legend to the effect that the seeds were selected with great care from varieties which the department of agriculture had under observation. The recipient was requested to make report of his success, together with such remarks as might be deemed valuable. That is, the department of agriculture proposed to take the people into partnership and extend its experimentation to every part of the country in the interests of agriculture.

But the method of making the distribution was unfortunate. The member of congress early saw the value of the little seed packets in making him strong with the home folks. Congress lacked sympathy for the ideals of the department of agriculture, but it had a healthy appreciation of political assets. And the insincerity extended to the selection and purchase of the seeds. The charge was frequently made and never refuted, that seedsmen having an overstock of seed found ways of getting rid of them profitably through the government.

"Does th' Razor Hurt Ya'?"

HOME FINE FIRE FIGHTING.

It must have afforded a great degree of satisfaction to the citizens of Marion to note the manner in which the local fire department handled the Hoch Automobile company fire. If our memory serves us correctly, it is the first fire in the experience of the local department in which large quantities of gasoline were ablaze, and firemen, like all others, have to learn to a great degree by experience. That the blaze was not communicated to the buildings at either side of it is a matter for congratulation due no less to the prevailing direction of the wind than to the excellent work of our city fire fighters.

All Marionites may not realize it—in fact, but few may—but Marion has a fine fire department and an exceptionally fine chief in charge of it.

The Star wishes to pay this compliment to our firemen and at the same time felicitate the people of Marion upon the high quality and worth of the fire department, which is ours.

A paragrapher says girls don't blush like they used to, but how under the sun does he know?

Attending the movies is made compulsory over in Russia. Compulsion is unnecessary in this country.

A number of suggestions for putting an end to the crime wave have been offered, but possibly as good a one as any would be to mete out real punishment to those who are apprehended in its commission.

"What has become of the man who said the presidency of the league of nations would be the highest honor in the world?" asks the Washington Post. Oh, he's probably off in a corner by himself meditating over the fact that there's an awful gap between theory and practice.

We glean from a fashion note that knee breeches for men are coming, sure as judgment, and we simply can not help feeling that a style like that is a needless cruelty to men with legs like those of some we know.—Marion Star. Wonder if the paragrapher of the Star rode horseback much when he was young?—Newark American-Tribune.

Yes, but, Honest Injun, it didn't leave us in the shape you intimate.

ITS VERY PURPOSE DEFEATED.

Leading bankers and business men of the United States who have been actuated by fear that they might be accused of having selfish motives in showing a hesitancy about advocating a revision of the revenue laws in a way that would relieve industry and business of some of its burdens, see hope of a better deal with the advent of the new administration. Only persons who fail to give the subject intelligent thought can subscribe to a system of taxation that places a handicap upon the business interests of the nation, through a method that is as complicated in its operations as it is unjust in its applications.

The professed purpose of the lawmakers in enacting the present taxation measure was to make those best able to bear the burden pay the taxes. The declaration sounded good to many people who are now learning that the excess profits tax and the income surtaxes, while yielding large revenues defeat the very purpose for which they were intended. The profits taxes have been paramided and passed on to the consumers who were supposed to be the principal beneficiaries. Business has been stagnated and industrial enterprises have languished because men with money have had little inducement to use it for expansion.

The public is told that the government has not been able to check up the reports under the revenue laws for the years 1918 and 1919 and [illegible] for 1920 will soon be falling due, and into the revenue dues. Large sums of money are being withheld by persons who have not been required to make honest reports and those who are prompt in payment of all sums due the government are bearing the burden. The whole system has brought about a condition that is working grave injustice.

"Alas! you know the cause too well
The salt is spilt—to me it fell.
Then, to contribute to my loss,
My knife and fork were laid across,

Bounce from the fire a coffin flew.
Next post some fatal news shall tell:
God send my Cornish friends be well."

You say you're not superstitious?

You don't fear when the salt is spilt at table?

You don't shiver when a knife and fork are laid across?

You have no dread of Friday—you don't hesitate to start an enterprise, or start on a journey, on that day of the week?

Well, then what is your pet superstition?

Oh, you have one—or more!

Do you expect bad luck when you chance to glimpse the new moon over your left shoulder?

Some persons do.

Do you fear to walk under a ladder leaning against a wall?

Do you think that the howling of a dog at night foretells a death?

Are you afraid to carry a hoe into the house—because the act may bring ill fortune to the family?

Do you shudder when you see a person show a baby its reflection in the mirror—for fear the baby may lose its mind?

No, you say, to all these questions?

Then—what is your pet superstition?

Oh, you're civilized all right, I know! But your civilization doesn't penetrate deeper than your skin; and beneath your skin lurks an aboriginal savage—an old savage who sat huddled over a smouldering campfire in the black night and shuddered at the eerie sounds he could not fathom nor understand.

So—

Do you believe in blind luck?

Do you consult fortune-tellers?

Do you have faith in the ouija board?

Are you leery of the number thirteen?

Anent this last superstition, let me tell you what J. C. Millais avers. He says that on one occasion he sat down where there were thirteen at table; and among the distinguished guests were Matthew Arnold, the poet, Edgar Seeholm, a playwright, and Edgar Dawson, a personal friend of Millais. These three arose from the table—to break the spell of the mystic number thirteen. And now to quote the words of Millais:

"Within six months—Matthew Arnold died suddenly of heart disease; Edgar Seeholm was murdered in New York; and within the year Edgar Dawson was drowned."

A mere coincidence, or [illegible] dences, you say?

Maybe.

I think so myself.

But what is your pet superstition?

Search your soul!

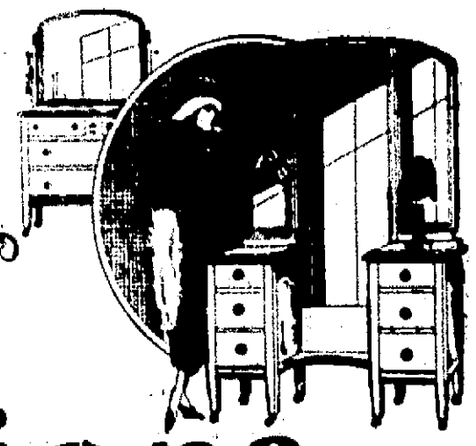
Meeting To-days Conditions



Never before has the country passed through such a wave of prosperity as that we have just experienced—never before has the inability to produce sufficient manufactured goods forced prices so high. But at last we have reached the turning point. The conditions of today make it imperative that furniture come down.

Though we have, on our floors, stocks purchased at war time prices we must sell at today's reduced prices and we are willing to take a loss to do it. We have marked down every piece of furniture to a price considered a good bargain, even in these times. Original cost has been disregarded.

To enable you to take advantage of these phenomenal prices, we are extending our liberal credit offer making it possible for you to actually save money by buying now and paying later. This offer permits you to furnish your house at low prices and pay for it as the prices mount. Don't miss this opportunity of a life time!

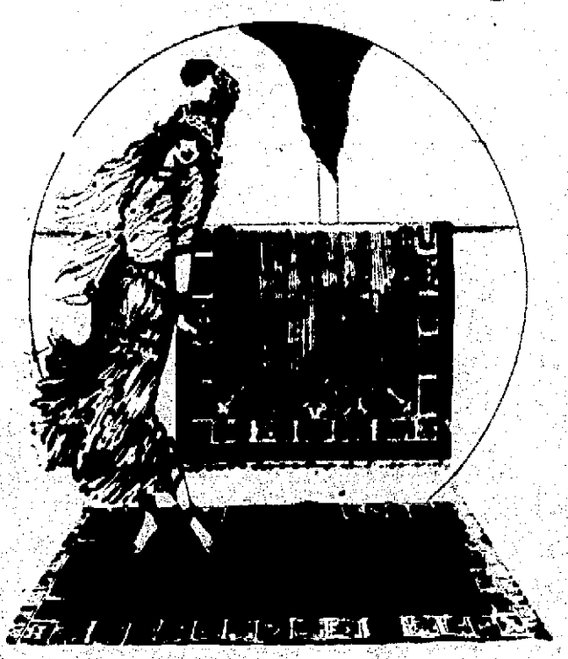
The pendulum, right now, is at the bottom of the swing. These prices we quote are the lowest possible prices that can be quoted on furniture. The wise man will buy NOW before the upward swing—and save money.

FEBRUARY 25% OFF SALE! - ONLY THREE DAYS LEFT!

Low Priced Comfort ... $13.50

When you can buy comfort in a rocker for so low a price as that we are quoting here—it offers an opportunity you can not afford to miss. Massively constructed of oak, upholstered in a fine grade leatherette—a real buy at $13.50.

25% Off on all Rugs



The very breath of the Orient is woven into the splendid display of rugs we are exhibiting at greatly reduced prices. The collection includes a wide variety of imported rugs as well as many of domestic weaves. If you are interested in saving, don't miss this sale.

Two Delightful Pieces - - $69

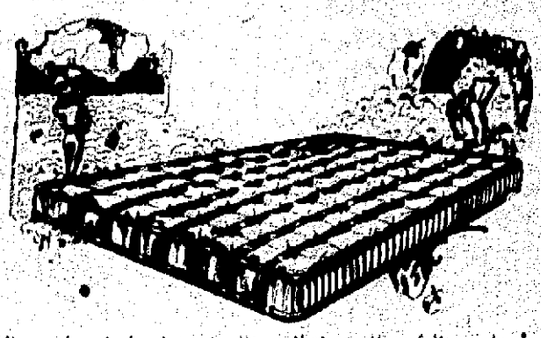
Here are two delightful pieces that will add to the attractiveness of your bedroom.

Triple mirrored dressing table with bench. Be sure to see our complete line of dressing tables at special prices for clearance.

QUALITY & STYLE
At a price you can pay
$437.50

Rarely will you find such quality as this in a dining-room suite—never at such a low price. Its nine beautiful pieces, table, buffet, china cabinet, server, one arm chair and five plain chairs make a suite you should own. Finished in mahogany.

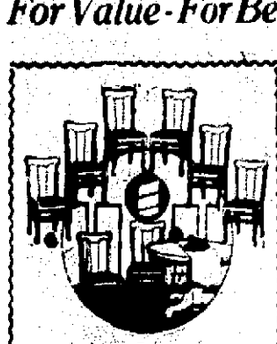
Genuine Cotton-Felt Mattress
$11.25



Remember, in buying a mattress, that a cotton felt one is always the best. It is built from layers of felt, thereby doing away with the packing of the filling in one place and the shifting in another. This mattress, at the price we quote it, is a startling value.

If You Demand Beauty Consider This Suite
$202.50

One of the choicest bed room suites we have been able to offer our customers. Beautiful in design and unusually fine in workmanship. Consists of four pieces as shown. Distinctive bed, large chifforobe, roomy dresser and dressing table. Finished in walnut.



Six Chairs
$43.75

Here is your opportunity to furnish your dining room with those new chairs you have been planning at one-half today's value. Made of oak—upholstered in leatherette. Set of six, complete.

Improve Your Bedroom $31.00

Improve your bedroom with a new bed. This massive one of genuine brass is just what you are looking for. Large and unusually comfortable. We also have a fine selection in iron and wood at low prices.

Aristocracy in Good Furniture
$267.50

It doesn't take an expert to tell a good piece of furniture from a poor one—the most inexperienced can see that this is no ordinary living room suite. The large full-backed settee, the tall wide arm chair, the winged back chair all bespeak quality. Quality considered—a rare value.

Holding A Husband

BY ADELE GARRISON.

Little Mrs. Durkee and Marion greeted Lillian and me with boxes of bonbons—with joy. Leila Forbes was nowhere to be seen and in answer to our involuntary look of inquiry our hostess explained with reluctance perfectly.

"She's gone down to the florist's to see about flowers for Sunday. I'm sure she and Alf will come back. As I couldn't attend to those things myself for my girl I'm sure the beginning of the end. I'm just going to be nobody in my own house after those girls get to running things their way."

The tears, which are always near the eyes of Mrs Fluffiness, began to course down her cheeks. Lillian gave Marion a signal, and the child with one distressed glance at Mrs Durkee, went quietly and expeditiously out of the room.

"Is Edith going to live here, too?" Lillian asked, when the child was out of earshot.

I listened eagerly for Mrs Durkee's reply, although I had learned of this arrangement before.

"Oh, of course!" Mrs. Durkee replied wearily. "We're going to be a complete happy family."

"Wherever are you going to stow them all away?" Lillian asked. I stole a furtive look of astonishment at her, for she is never in the least inquisitive, before I fathomed the purpose of her question. She knew that if she could get Mrs. Durkee's mind switched to her household affairs our little hostess would forget her grievances in the delight of exhibiting her new arrangements to us.

"Come upstairs and I'll show you," Her Fluffiness responded promptly drying her tears hurriedly and becoming cheerful immediately. "You won't know the rooms. I've been busy as a bee getting them ready, and yet I'll bet there'll be something she'll want to change."

I reflected as I followed her upstairs that Leila would be an unusual bride if she did not wish to have some arrangement of her own choosing in the rooms in which so much of her life would be spent. But I saw when little Mrs. Durkee proudly threw open the doors of the rooms she had set apart for them that she had arranged every last detail, even to the shades covering the electric torches which simulated candles in the wall sconces.

"Wasn't it lucky that we never furnished this room adjoining Alf's?" Mrs. Durkee asked, when we had finished exclaiming over the beauty and daintiness of the appointments of the room intended for the bride. Her Fluffiness is a housekeeper par excellence, and she had evidently put her whole heart into the furnishing and arrangement of the rooms. "You see," she went on, "this room has an alcove, so I could put the dressing table and chiffonier in there out of the way. And by getting a day bed instead of a regular one, Leila and Alfred can use this room for a little sitting room. Alf has always wanted an upstairs sitting room, but I never got around to fix him one before."

The real beauty of the room faded for me at her words. There was not a thought in it for the gentle, beautiful girl whose home it was henceforth to be. Alfred was to have the upstairs sitting room he had always wanted, and his bride was to have her belongings shunted into out-of-the way corners in order to accomplish that object.

"How do you like the color scheme?" Mrs. Durkee asked, with all the confidence of a child who knows that it has done something clever, and only waits for the praise.

"It's lovely!" Lillian said heartily. "I suppose it is Leila's favorite color?"

For a fleeting second little Mrs Durkee looked embarrassed, a second in which I wondered if Lillian knew, as I did, that the room, exquisite as it was, in pale corn color and gold with just a touch of olive for contrast, was yet directly opposed to Leila's passionate admiration for anything pink.

The colors of the roses, from the lightest to the darkest tints—I well knew her love of them, and yet her husband's mother had furnished her room with a color background against which even Leila's favorite blossoms, pink sweet peas, and Killarney roses, would jar.

"It ought to be if it isn't," Mrs. Durkee answered Lillian's question with an obstinate setting of her pretty lips. "She's just the coloring to look well against that background. And, besides, I didn't want to do over Alf's room; he fixed it all up in his favorite browns not very long ago, and this harmonizes wonderfully with it. See—"

She threw open the connecting doors between the bedrooms, and we saw that the color scheme of one did, indeed, blend charmingly with that of the other.

"You certainly have accomplished wonders," Lillian said.

There was only perfunctory admiration in her tone, and I knew that she resented with me the selfishness—unconscious though it undoubtedly was—which had led little Mrs Durkee to prepare for daughter-in-law's room with no thought for the girl's tastes or comfort.

DROPSY TREATED FREE

DR. FRANKLIN MILES, the Great Specialist, Will Send a $3.75 Treatment and New Book Free.

Send for Many Remarkable Reports After Three to Ten Doctors Failed.

At first no disease is apparently more harmless than dropsy; a little swelling of the eyelids, hands, feet, ankles, or abdomen. Finally there is great shortness of breath, smothering spells, rising up to breathe, cough, fainting spells, sometimes nausea and vomiting, even burning of the limbs and a lingering and wretched death if the dropsy is not removed.

Dr. Miles has been known as a leading specialist in these diseases for 25 years. His liberal offer is certainly worthy of serious consideration. You may not have another opportunity.

The Grand Dropsy Treatment consists of four dropsy remedies in one, also Tonic Tablets, and Pure-Luxa for removing the water. This treatment is specially prepared for each patient and in from three to six days, as successful as it has in thousands of cases. It relieves usually the first day, and removes swelling in six days in most cases. Delay is dangerous. Dr. Miles' book contains many wonderful testimonials.

NEVER FELT BETTER IN HER LIFE, SHE STATES

Toledo Woman Gains Fifteen Pounds aad Overcomes Troubles of Three Years' Standing by Taking Tanlac.

"If there was ever a day in my life when I felt better than I do now I can't remember it," said Mrs Albert Wolf, 969 Curtis street, Toledo, in relating her experience with Tanlac.

"Tanlac has not only relieved me of my suffering but has built me up fifteen pounds in weight, and I just think it is the grandest medicine in the world.

"For three years I had been gradually becoming run down, and was constantly having terrible sick headaches when everything turned black before me and I got so dizzy I couldn't stand up.

"My nerves were so upset I just rolled and tossed the night through and mornings I got up feeling tired and worn out.

"I fell off until I was very thin, and became so weak I could scarcely look after my housework. Then, too, I suffered almost all the time with an awful pain in my back.

"Although it seems that I just tried everything, nothing did the good. I was finally told nothing could help me. No one can imagine how discouraged and despondent I felt over my condition.

"But I kept seeing in the papers where Tanlac had helped so many others, I decided to try it, and it wasn't long before things began to brighten up for me.

"I have taken five bottles now, and that tired worn out feeling is entirely gone. My appetite is just fine and my food agrees with me perfectly.

"My nerves are calm and steady, I sleep like a child nights, and wake up mornings feeling refreshed and ready to begin on my housework.

"In fact, Tanlac has helped me so much I just can't find words to express the praise and gratitude I really feel in my heart. I only hope this statement may cause others who are suffering to try Tanlac, for I'm sure it will help them just like it did me."

Tanlac is sold in Marion by The Dumble Pharmacy, in LaRue by Sifritt's Pharmacy and in Waldo by Apt Pharmacy.—Adv.

Skin Sufferers Do Not Want Mere Temporary Relief

Of course, if you are content to have only temporary relief from the terrifying itching and burning of fiery, flaming skin diseases, then you are satisfied to remain a slave to ointments, lotions and other local remedies applied to the surface of the skin.

Real genuine relief from eczema, tetter, scaly eruptions or any other form of skin irritations cannot be expected until you free your blood of the germs which cause these disorders. And for this purpose there is no remedy that gives more satisfactory results than S.S.S., the fine old blood remedy that goes down to the source of every blood disorder and routs out the germs which cause the trouble.

S.S.S. is sold by all druggists. Begin taking it today, and if you will write a complete history of your case, our medical director will give you expert advice without charge. Address Chief Medical Adviser, 155 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

"DANDERINE"

Girls! Save Your Hair! Make It Abundant!

Immediately after a "Danderine" massage, your hair takes on new life, lustre and wondrous beauty, appearing twice as heavy and beautiful, because each hair seems to grow and thicken. Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, plain or scraggy. You, too, want lots of long, strong, beautiful hair.

A 35-cent bottle of delightful "Danderine" freshens your scalp, checks dandruff and falling hair. This stimulating "beauty-tonic" gives to thin, dull, fading hair that youthful brightness and abundant thickness.—All druggists.—Adv.

MR. OR MRS. DYSPEPTIC

"Really does" put weak, disordered stomachs in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness due to acid fermentation—that—just that—make Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach antacid and regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments and turns sour, you belch gas and eructate undigested food or water; head is dizzy and aches, breath foul; tongue coated, remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness. A box of Pape's Diapepsin tablets costs so little at drug stores too.—Adv.

GARIS' BEDTIME STORIES

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE FOUNTAIN PEN.

[BY HOWARD R. GARIS.]

[Copyright 1921, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]

"There it goes again! My goodness, I never saw anything like it!" cried Uncle Wiggily Longears in his hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"What is the matter now?" asked Nurse Jane, who was washing the breakfast dishes. "Is the bad old black bushy Bear coming to get those griddle cakes he didn't get yesterday—when you fooled him by pretending the flour was a snowstorm?"

"No, the Bear isn't coming," answered Uncle Wiggily, who was sitting at a table, writing some letters on white pieces of birch bark for paper. "It's this fountain pen, Grandpa Goosey gave it to me for Christmas, but it does the funniest things."

"What's the matter with it?" asked Nurse Jane. "I see your paws are all ink."

"Yes, the fountain pen made them that way," Uncle Wiggily answered. "Grandpa Goosey thought it was a good pen, I suppose, and I wouldn't not for two carrots and a piece of turnip, have him think I didn't like his present. But something is wrong with this pen.

"When I put ink in the hollow handle, so it will run out the other end and make black marks on the white birch bark, something always happens. Sometimes the black ink spurts out just like a fountain in the park, and it gets all over my paws, as you see.

"Again not a drop of ink will come from the pen, and I have to take a burned stick to write with, as I did before Grandpa Goosey gave me this. But still it seems to be working all right now—perhaps because I'm telling you about it. I think I can finish writing my letters."

"I wish you would write one for me, Uncle Wiggily," begged the muskrat lady. "My paws are all dough, for I am making a chocolate cake. Just write and tell Mrs. Wibblewobble, the duck lady, that I'll be over to see her tomorrow, and we'll go to the movies together."

"All right, I'll do that," promised the bunny gentleman. "I must put some more ink in my pen, though."

Uncle Wiggily brought out the bottle of ink, and with it a little medicine dropper to suck up the ink from the bottle and squirt it into the hollow handle of the fountain pen.

"There, now, I am ready to write my own letters and Nurse Jane's also," said Mr. Longears, as he took the fountain pen in his paw and pulled his chair up to the table. "I hope my pen behaves and doesn't leak on my pink nose, or spurt up like a fountain," he said to himself.

Uncle Wiggily was just going to write to Mrs. Wibblewobble for Nurse Jane, when, all of a quickness, he heard a noise behind his chair and, turning, he saw the bad old Skillery Scalery Alligator with the humps on his tail.

"Well, I see you are home!" grunted the 'gator.

"I wish you didn't see me nor I you," spoke Uncle Wiggily. "Are you pretending to be a postman, and have you come for the letters I am writing with my fountain pen?"

"Indeed not!" cried Mr. Alligator. "I came to nibble your ears, but before I do so let me see that fountain pen. I promised to bring one to my little boy, and I might as well take yours, as it will save me buying one."

Then, very rudely, the Alligator snatched the fountain pen from Uncle Wiggily's paw and began looking at the ink stick.

"Oh wow! Oh woof! Oh kuff!" howled the 'gator. "Now I see what it does! This is too much for me! I never knew fountain pens acted this way."

"You never can tell what that fountain pen is going to do!" laughed Uncle Wiggily, as the Alligator, all black, dropped the pen and jumped out of the window. "I guess I must have filled it a little too full, to have it spurt out that way! But I'm glad I did."

Then the bunny got some blotting paper and soaked the ink up off the floor, and after that his fountain pen seemed to work better, and he wrote all the letters. But wasn't it good the ink drove away the Skillery Scalery chap? I think so!

WHEN YOU USE IODINE

For Soreness, Lameness, Cuts or Bruises.

Iodine has been used as a general antiseptic healing agent and first-aid dressing for minor injuries for over one hundred years, and today seems to be even more popular than ever.

In nearly every home the Iodine bottle has a prominent place. But ordinary Tincture of Iodine is objectional in that it always stains, and often irritates or blisters the flesh.

To overcome these serious disadvantages of the Tincture of Iodine and still retain 100 per cent. medicinal value, has long been a problem which has finally been successfully solved by a well-known Syracuse Chemist who has recently marketed a preparation called Lanolated Iodine Compound, which, according to tests made by physicians, hospitals, and many Iodine users, effectively takes the place of the old-fashioned Tincture.

It goes further and costs less, at the same time offering a dependable Iodine medication that can not evaporate, stain, irritate or blister and does not lose its strength.

The next time you want to use Iodine—Try Lanolated Iodine. Money back if you don't like it better than the Tincture. Any good druggist can now supply you.—Adv.

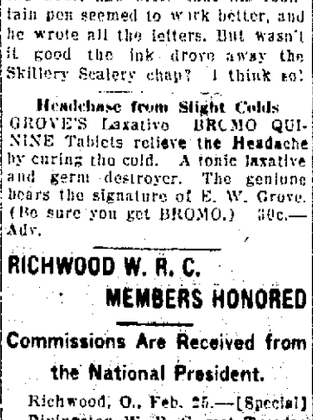
FOLEY CATHARTIC TABLETS

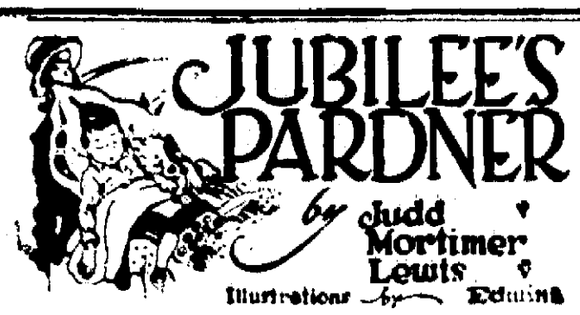
Never disappoint. Take one tonight and feel better in the morning.

Clarence Spencer, San Antonio, Texas—"Foley Cathartic Tablets have proven to be the best laxative I ever have taken and I recommend them for constipation and biliousness."



She: I wish that the Lord made a man.

He: Perhaps He did, but you haven't found him yet.



When I woke up this morning I did not know where I was at at first and then I remembered and I felt of one ear and it felt puffy and so did the other one, and the room was offal cold and I got up and fixed the fires and dressed and was setting with Jubilee's head on my lap when my father come out to the stove to dress. And he asked me if I had milked already and I asked him if he had forgot that my ears was froze, and he said if I would go out and milk the cow and her dotter with my hands instead of my ears I would find that it would work all right, and if I didn't he would warm me so that he knowed one part of me that would not ever get froze.

When I had come in they all looked at my ears and my grandfather said they was a pretty bad looking pair of wings and my mother had better take me to a doctor before I went to school, and my father said it was not any time to spend money foolishly, but my mother said she was going to take me. So she did.

It was offal white and cold outside and no one was out only those that had to be, and I stopped two or three of them and told them that my ears was froze, and they said no wonder. I wanted to unwrap my head so folks that we met could see them, but my mother said if I unwrapped it she would rap it, and she would so I didn't.

The doctor felt of them and pinched them and looked at them a long time, and then he painted them brown, and when my mother asked him what he thought, he said he would try to save them but they would probly rot and drop off, and if they do that I will not have no more ears than a rabbit. My mother said mean things about Younisses mother all the way home for taking me out last night. I bet if they drop off I will be the only fella in the world without any ears. I hope they do. A fella don't hear with his ears anyhow. He hears with the holes in them.

When I got away from home I unwrapped them so folks could see them. A man stopped me and told me my ears was getting tanned and I better wrap them up. I told him they was froze and he said they looked more like they was baked. All the kids in school wished they was me, and Jonesy said she was sorry. But she said I would not lose them. She said she had nursed lots of froze ears in the war she was in. I do not care if I don't. Maybe I will get a leg or something cut off some time.

We went down to the lake and the crack in the ice is a mile wide and like glass. I went home for my skates and my father made me stay in. Younises come over and we played with Annabel Lee. She said I talked a lot about my ears. Why shouldn't I?

MARION MAN, G. W. JENNINGS, HIGHLY ENDORSES NUXITE

After Taking Nuxite, Marion Man, Feels Fine. Most Wonderful Medicine in the World, he Declares.

I was in a badly run-down condition, when I started taking Nuxite, but after taking Nuxite about ten days, I am feeling like a new man, said Mr. G. W. Jennings, who lives at 329 Davids St., Marion, Ohio, and formerly ran a grocery store. Continuing Mr. Jennings stated: "While I was not sick in bed I was so badly run down for some time past, I just felt tired and worn out all the time and felt like not doing anything. My appetite was nothing like as good as usual, I did not feel right at any time and nothing I ate seemed to agree with me. I had no energy or ambition, and was sluggish and my work suffered. I did not rest well at night would roll and toss about in the bed.

I had been reading so much in the newspapers about the good Nuxite was doing to others. After studying several days I decided to give Nuxite a trial. I bought a bottle of Nuxite, I had finished taking one bottle and I noticed I was getting back to my former good condition. My appetite has returned. I can eat anything I want and all I want, without feeling any bad after effects.

I am completely over that tired and worn out feeling and feel like I could do a good day's work without stopping. I am not so nervous. Sleep fine every night. I am just going to take some more of Nuxite, just to be sure I do not have a return of my trouble. It's without a doubt a great medicine and I advise everybody who feels as I did to take Nuxite.

Nuxite to which Mr. Jennings refers is being introduced at Schmidt & Co.'s drug store, under the supervision of W. R. Cooper, the Nuxite man.—Adv.

ELKS ARRANGE FOR PAST EXALTED RULERS' NIGHT

J. Leonard Price Next Exalted Ruler; Nominations Closed.

MIDST RAPS AND SIGNS OF THE VARIOUS LODGES

Marion Lodge of Elks, No. 32, Thursday conducted the last nomination of officers before the election in one week, named a committee to arrange for the celebration of past exalted rulers' night March 10 when fifty or more candidates will be initiated and made preliminary plans for the proper observance of mothers' day the second Sunday in May.

J. Leonard Price, now esteemed leading knight, is to be the next exalted ruler, succeeding Charles L. Justice. He will be elected without opposition. Other officers who will be elected next Thursday night without opposition and the stations they will fill are:

Esteemed leading knight, Carl Danner; esteemed loyal knight, Lydon Jones; Herchard Critchfield, esteemed lecturing knight, and tyler, Edward H. Huggins.

Exalted Ruler Justice will be the lodge's delegate to the next grand lodge meeting and Past Exalted Ruler James Wark is to be the alternate.

Other offices for which there are contests are secretary, treasurer, trustee and holding company director.

Past Exalted Ruler G. E. McCormick was appointed chairman of a committee to make the arrangements for past exalted rulers' night when all the stations will be occupied by past exalted rulers, who will confer the initiatory work. Other members of this committee are Past Exalted Rulers William H. Holverstott and Charles L. Murphey.

It has for a number of years been the custom of Marion lodge to make mothers' day one of the big feature events of the year and this year will be no exception, it is announced. C. L. VanAradell was named chairman of this committee and James Kane and Harry Lippincott as members.

The Knights of Columbus were granted permission to use the Elks' hall March 6 for the initiation of a large class.

Secretary P. H. Rettig announced that the profits from the Elks' minstrel show amounted to $1,289.89, the money being turned into the lodge treasury last night.

Druids Plan Degree Work.

Two applications were received and the first and second degrees conferred on a class of candidates at the meeting of the Druids held Thursday evening. Arrangements were made to confer the first and second degrees on a class next Thursday night. A pig roast will be enjoyed following the work next week.

Royal Neighbors.

Three applications were received at the regular meeting of the Royal Neighbors Thursday night. Arrangements were made for an entertainment and social at the next meeting March 10.

Modern Woodmen.

Mooseheart Legion.

One application was received and one balloted on at the regular meeting of the Mooseheart Legion Thursday night.

Wayside Lodge, No. 564, I. O. O. F., met Thursday night with a large attendance. The first degree was conferred on two candidates, and plans were made to work the second degree next Thursday night.

Uniform Rank.

Six applications for membership were balloted on at the meeting of Marion Company, No. 15, Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias, Thursday night. Plans are being made for the initiation of a large class March 10.

The company is also making arrangements to organize a drum corps.

Companions of Foresters.

Officers were installed at the meeting of the Companions of Foresters Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Florence Cramer as installing officer. A six-o'clock dinner was enjoyed at the Dickerson dining room at the Pilgrim Inn and later the members attended a theater party at the Marion.

Officers installed are Mrs. Estella Baker, chief deputy; Mrs. Lulu Pickering, chief ranger; Mrs. Anna Dwyer, vice chief ranger; Mrs. Florence Cramer, financial secretary; Mrs. Madge Bigley, recording secretary; Mrs. Estella King, treasurer; Mrs. Hattie Schug, orator; Mrs. Alice Ireland and Mrs. Aaron Schultz, senior woodwards, and Mrs. Minnie Metcalf, junior woodward.

LAND GRANT SECURED BY GERMANS IN CHILI

German Interests Plan To Build Big Steel Plant.

Santiago, Chile, Feb. 25.—Negotiations with the Chilean government for a concession of 30,000 acres of land in the province of Llanquihue, in the southern end of the country, have been concluded by representatives of German industrial interests. It is planned to construct on the property a plant for the manufacture of iron and steel products. The concession will run 50 years, but may be annulled within two years if all machinery is not installed and within five years if by that time the plant is not in full operation, it is said.

Otto Lenz and Paul Guerich, German engineers, who carried on the negotiations, are declared to be en route to Germany to arrange for the transportation of machinery, materials and technical experts to Chile.

Banker Kills Himself.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 25.—William E. Bassett, 42, vice president of the Phoenix National bank of this city, shot and killed himself at his home here. He leaves a widow and three children.

A motion-picture film fifteen miles in length and which requires nearly twenty-four hours for continous exhibition has been completed in Italy, showing the principal incidents in the Bible from creation to the birth of Christ.
